SENATE OIL LEASE PROBE LOOMING

BANKER SEES BETTER TIMES AHEAD

DECLARES BANKERS CONTROL RECOVERY BECAUSE OF CREDIT

Attacks Taxes, Trust
Law; Election Wed-

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30.—Although branding the Sherman anti-trust law as out-of-date, and mounting taxation as a formidable restraint to business, John G. Lonsdale of St. Louis, president of the American Bankers' Association, today urged conservatism in the pursuance of legislative enactments affecting banking at the opening general session of the fifty-sixth annual convention of the association here.

The great stabilizing power in the economic landscape of commerce and industry during the past year of stress, Lonsdale asserted, has been the American banking system, and "before there is set by law a course that years may be required to change, we should be able to see the way ahead more clearly than is now possible."

"There are signs that business is turning upward," he said. "The year of stress, Lonsdale asserted, has been the American banking system, and 'before there is set by law a course that years may be required to change, we should be able to see the way ahead more clearly than is now possible.'"

"The rapidity of recovery is, to some extent, in the hands of the bankers who control the flow of credit. The full force of our current recession has been greatly mitigated through the careful scrutiny of credit and the insistence upon skillful management imposed on our business structure through banking operations."

One of the formidable restraints to business progress, Lonsdale said, is mounting taxation. All taxes are too high, he declared, and there is a growing belief that the tax systems do not spread the cost equitably.

Questioning whether the Sherman anti-trust law does not in its present form stifle initiative in business and place a handicap on

CENSORS LIFT BAN ON "BIG HOUSE"

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 30.—"The Big House," the talking picture production on prison life, will be shown in Ohio. The state board of film censors, which twice banned the showing of the picture in theaters in the state, reconsidered its action late yesterday and approved it. The board announced more than a week ago that the picture had been banned because it would be "harmful to the boys and girls."

The previous action of the board was lifted due to the apparent state-wide demand for the picture, it was announced. The film portrays life in an overcrowded state prison and features "strong-arm" methods and other conditions which are said to exist in penal institutions.

LIKE SERIALS? TRY OURS

DID it ever occur to you how much more satisfactory it is to read serial stories in a newspaper than in a magazine? The newspaper serial offers you an installment daily, not too long but what it can be read without interfering with other duties or pleasures, but generous enough to keep the thread of the story running brightly. The monthly magazines require five or six issues to publish a story of similar length, with the customary month's wait between issues so that the reader loses the thread of the story in forgetfulness. The weekly magazines publish briefer installments than the monthly publications and spread the story out almost as long. If you like fascinating mystery stories begin reading "IT WAS LOCKED" by John Hawk in THE GAZETTE this week. It will be served to you in daily installments so that it is not difficult to carry the plot in mind from day to day.

WORLD SERIES BROADCAST

Gazette Invites Fans To Hear Series Games On
Huge Radio Amplifying System

WILL the St. Louis Cardinals, champions of the National League or the Philadelphia Athletics, American League pennant holders, win the world's baseball championship?

Lots of people would like to know the answer, but the only real solution is the outcome of the annual world series games, biggest sport feature in America, which will start in Philadelphia Wednesday and continue until a winner has been declared.

Thousands of raving fans will be on hand in Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Wednesday, when the series opens, and thousands more will be grouped about radios in all parts of the land, listening to the play-by-play description of the games to be broadcast over the National Broadcasting Co., chain by the king of radio announcers, Graham McNamee.

Permission to broadcast the series has been given by Judge K. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball. Both stations WEA and WJZ will be the national outlets for the huge broadcast, and THE GAZETTE, following an annual and highly popular custom, will be on hand to receive this broadcast and deliver it to downtown baseball fans through its new Public Address System.

On this occasion, THE GAZETTE'S new Public Address System, a powerful equipment for the broadcasting of public, outdoor events, will be used for the first time for the baseball broadcast. Purchased this summer, the Public Address System was used to give election returns here primary night, and was also used at the Greene County Fair and at a number of other county fairs in this section of Ohio. Popular acclaim has followed the instrument everywhere.

Four huge auditorium type loudspeakers, powered by seventeen tubes of amplification, give this equipment clarity of tone and long-range carriage, and make it by all odds the finest equipment ever used in Xenia. The games are scheduled to start at 1:30 p. m. in Philadelphia and 2:30 when played in St. Louis and the broadcast will be on the air every afternoon.

Insofar as edition schedules permit, the play-by-play description of the world series games will be published in THE GAZETTE.

James L. Kilgallen, who has closely followed the games in both major leagues and who visited the spring training camps last spring, will direct the International News Service series coverage for THE GAZETTE, which will include articles by Kilgallen, Bill Corum's daily column, Ford Frick's comment and baseball stories by Homer Metz and Robert Herford.

(Special to Gazette)
CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 30.—Intense sensational developments are expected to follow swiftly in the wake of the mysterious theft of the great mogul diamond, which Bim Gump presented to Henrietta Zander at a banquet when their plans to wed on October 1, were announced.

The best detective talent in this and other countries has been enlisted to solve the baffling mystery. Bim Gump, on the verge of distraction over the loss, has ordered that no expense be spared in the search and has offered enormous rewards for recovery of the priceless gem, the finest in the world and which, with its necklace of the purest diamonds, runs into a value that is staggering.

Messages have been pouring in from all over the world suggesting theories as to the master mind back of the amazing theft. A majority of the senders express the opinion that "Scarface Al" Capone, whose criminal ramifications extend in all directions, engineered the robbery, but it is pointed out that the crime was more subtle in execution than the usual Capone method.

It is recalled that after displaying the mogul and necklace on the beautiful throat of Mrs. Zander, Mr. Gump took charge of it, placed it in a small steel safe which he placed in his room at the home of his brother, Andy Gump. The safe was placed on a table near a window, which was securely bolted, with ventilation space of about three inches at the top. All the doors, including the closet door, were locked and bolted and the one leading to the hall was barricaded. Bim Gump was the only occupant of the room and was armed with a shot gun. While he slept the safe and its tremendously valuable contents was stolen but in what manner the best detective minds are unable to venture even a guess.

The solitary crew, a tenuous one at best, were footprints in the soft earth on the lawn, eighteen feet below the window. These footprints were of a one-legged man but there are no marks of a crutch or cane or other support. Nor are there any marks of a ladder being raised to the window.

Owing to the immense size of the mogul, it will be impossible for the thieves to dispose of it, as it is known all over the world, unless they cut it into smaller gems. It is the general belief that the robbers will soon open negotiations with Mr. Gump for its "ransom."

There is wide speculation as to the effect the theft will have upon the impending marriage of Mr. Gump and Miss Zander. There are sinister hints that in his investigation of the robbery Mr. Gump may come across disturbing knowledge that may postpone, if indeed it does not cancel, his marriage plans.

YOUTH HEADED WEST IN DARING ATTEMPT TO CAPTURE RECORD

Schoolboy Aviator Is Impeded By Wind, Fog
On Mountains

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 30.—Robert Buck, 16-year-old schoolboy aviator, attempting to establish a new transcontinental flight record for boys under 21 years of age, hopped off from Stout Field, Mars Hill airport here at 7:50 a. m. Buck headed west with the hope that he would not land until he arrives at Albuquerque, N. M.

"But if I get to Albuquerque while it is daylight, I'll go on," he said.

The youth, who took off in his father's Pitcairn sport mail wing airplane from Albany, N. Y., at 7 a. m. yesterday, fought winds and fog in surmounting the Allegheny Mountains. He used so much gasoline that he was compelled to make a landing at Martins Ferry, O. Another landing at Columbus, O. followed and after descending at Stout Field at 4:20 p. m. he spent the night in Indianapolis.

The lad was nearly as uncommunicative with newspapermen as Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, but it was because he was too sleepy, to talk last night, he said.

The record which Buck is trying to break is twenty-nine hours, forty-one minutes, held by Eddie Schneider.

RUM RUNNERS FLEE BUT LEAVE LIQUOR

NEW PORT R. I., Sept. 30.—Driving their three automobiles at terrific speed through a rain of broken seventy-five and 100 shot from the pistols of a group of coastguardsmen, a party of liquor smugglers today escaped, leaving behind on Newport Beach, $25,000 worth of imported liquor, three automobile trucks and two dories.

Four coastguardsmen under Captain Ellsworth Latham, of the Brenton Point station, had used an automobile in scouting the rum runners during the night instead of coastguard patrol boats.

GAZETTE SERIES GUESTS WILL HEAR M'NAMEE ANNOUNCING

The World Series will be broadcast again this year by the National Broadcasting Company with Graham McNamee, veteran announcer, at the microphone. It was announced today just after Judge K. M. Landis, czar of organized baseball, gave final permission.

The World's Series broadcast will go over an NBC coast-to-coast network.

The opening game of the series will be held at Shibe Field, Philadelphia, Wednesday, beginning at 1:30 o'clock Xenia time. The tentative schedule calls for the playing of the first two games at Philadelphia and the next three games at the home field of the St. Louis Cardinals. Then, if neither team has won the necessary four games, the play will be resumed at Philadelphia.

McNamee's appearance before the microphone will mark his seventh year as announcer of World Series games. He made radio's first world series broadcast in 1923, and since that time has announced thirty-eight world series games.

LAND OFFICE CHIEF MAY OFFER CHARGES BEFORE COMMITTEE

Senators Say Claims
Should Be Probed To
"Clean House"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—A senate investigation to determine if the ghost of the gigantic oil scandals which smeared the administration of President Harding has reappeared moved a notch nearer a reality today.

Ralph S. Kelley, chief of the general land office in Denver, Colo., for the last quarter of a century, whose resignation following his public charge the interior department played favoritism in awarding valuable oil shale land leases on public lands in the west was refused by Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, has announced he will amplify his charges before a senate investigating committee. Meanwhile he has been suspended.

Wilbur, too, declared he welcomed an investigation and has directed his subordinates to compile a report of all transactions relative to the oil lands in the public domain made since he assumed office.

The consensus of the senators now in Washington is that the charges made by Kelley are of such magnitude that the senate should conduct a thorough investigation and absolve the Hoover administration, if the allegations are false, or clean house of those officials who have failed to carry out their duties to the letter of the law.

Senator Nye (R) N. D., chairman of the senate public lands committee, said Kelley is a highly respected governmental official and it is "extraordinary" that he should resign from the government service after twenty-five years unless he felt he was doing the right thing.

Nye said Kelley must be given a hearing.

Another senator, Brookhart (R) Iowa, said an investigation into every charge preferred by Kelley in his letter of resignation to Wilbur should be investigated to see if they are based on facts.

"The American people are entitled to have their public domain and natural resources administered for the public good and the public benefit instead of being sloughed away and exploited for the benefit of a few," he said.

"We felt that the Elk Hills and Teapot Dome scandals had ended that sort of administration of the oil reserves."

Indeed the darkest spot of our history is the despoiling of our natural resources. There must be an investigation of these charges. If they are untrue the administration should be absolved, otherwise we must clean house again."

Senator Tydings (D) Maryland, says the possibility of the promulgation of a new national oil policy if Kelly's accusations are adjudged correct. He said the matter is "too serious to discuss further until we have all the facts."

Wilbur said he refused to accept Kelly's resignation because of the seriousness of his allegations and suspended him pending a departmental inquiry. He defended his department's administration of the oil lands and remarked Kelly was instructed on last July 7 to come here and take charge of the work he now attacks but was not yet reported to him.

Kelley appeared here in August and worked about a month during Wilbur's inspection of the Boulder Canyon dam site, the secretary's statement said.

Not a single lease for oil shale lands has been issued by the interior department since he took office, Wilbur declared.

A majority of the claims on such lands not invalidated by the general leasing act of 1920 are held, he said, in the names of individuals or associations of individuals comprised mainly of residents of the local community, he added.

"Whether so-called large oil companies purchased these claims after patent is a matter over which the department has no jurisdiction or control."

He also said the administration's oil conservation policy does not affect claims made under the old mineral leasing act and such claims were left intact as long as they complied with the old law.

Kelley alleged in his letter that the department during the last six years has awarded to powerful oil interests billions of dollars worth of oil lands in Colorado to which, he said, they are entitled.

EXPECT FIFTY BILLION WILL BUILD HOUSES

Lamont Says Vast Sum
Will Be Spent In Twenty Years

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The enormous sum of $50,000,000,000, will be spent on new residential construction in the United States during the next twenty years, Secretary of Commerce Lamont predicted today.

In discussing the President's conference on home building and home ownership, Lamont said that in addition $500,000,000 is being spent annually on household repairs and maintenance.

"A compilation of the recent vacancy survey made throughout the country indicates that in many centers the number of desirable vacant houses is not excessive, and that with the present rate of residential building activities, a resumption of more adequate building will soon be required by the needs of the steadily growing population," Lamont said.

Months of committee work will precede the main conference on home building and ownership. The organization will have a personnel of about one thousand, according to Lamont.

DISCOVERY OF BODY INDICATES VICTIM CRUELY MURDERED

Remains Mutilated; Robbery Motive Is Eliminated

DENNISON, O., Sept. 30.—An unidentified foreigner, whose police believe may be Anthony Carbone, address unknown, was found murdered in a ditch here today. He had been dead about three hours, according to Coroner J. F. Lewis, who immediately began an investigation.

The name, "Anthony Carbone," written on a small piece of paper, was found in a pocket of the man's clothing. An address which was not discernible was written below the name.

The mutilated body, hacked with a knife and beaten by an iron pipe which was lying nearby, was discovered by George Cleary, of Dennison.

Both ears were cut off, the back of the head was crushed and the face was gouged horribly. The hands were deeply cut and mangled, indicating, according to Coroner Lewis, that the man had grappled with his attacker who was wielding the knife.

Robbery was eliminated as the motive for the slaying when more than $15 was found in one of the pockets of the shabby clothing.

Introducing a gentleman of
"Universal" importance — Lew
Ayres.

Missed being a Christmas present by three days. Born Dec. 25, 1908, in Minneapolis, Minn.

Ran away from home to become a hobo. Saw Rudolph Valentino on the screen and decided to become an actor instead. Never told anybody about it for fear of being razed for thinking himself good-looking.

Was a freshman for five months at the University of Arizona. Majored in "music," playing in the college orchestra. Was taught piano by his grandmother, who is 75 years old and is still teaching.

Thought that the height of his ambition would be attained if he ever had enough money for a hango. Is now concentrating on a pipe organ.

Organized Band.
Organized a six-piece college band and barnstormed all through Mexico. Drifted into Los Angeles and played at the Beverly-Wilshire Hotel and Plantation Club.

Hung around casting offices for three months. Couldn't even get job as extra. As soon as he "clicked" every casting agent in Hollywood asked him where he had been hiding.

First actor he ever met was Douglas Fairbanks. Lunched with him and didn't open his mouth during the entire meal. Claims he would be equally as "dumb" if he met him now.

Attended his first and last tea dance in the Blossom Room of the Hotel Roosevelt. After one drink of orange pekoe gathered up enough courage to ask Lily Damita to dance with him. After one look at him, Lily answered "Mais, oui!"

Hollywood Days
Was "spotted" on the dance floor by Ivan Kahn, discoverer of Alice White and Sally O'Neil. And asked if he wanted to go into pictures. (Ed. note: This is NOT a Ripley, "Believe it or Not.")

Played a "bit" in "The Sophomore" for Pathe and was then recommended by Paul Bern, whom he had met but once, for the juvenile lead opposite Greta Garbo in "The Kiss."

Was casually introduced to Miss Garbo on the set and then given the big love scene to play with her. Vows it was the easiest and hardest assignment he has ever had.

Asked Garbo for her autographed picture five times during the making of the picture. Has the picture but the autograph is still conspicuous by its absence.

Was out of a job for four months after "The Kiss." Finally, along with the rest of the male population of Hollywood, took a test for "All Quiet on the Western Front." Expected to get one of the "boys' parts, but never dreamed it would be "Paul." Had to sign a five-year contract before he was given the role. Is now being rented to other companies at triple his salary.

Wore nothing but soldier's uniform for fourteen weeks during making of "All Quiet." Felt as if he were on furlough when he got into "civvies" again. Gets more upset than anyone else in an audience at harrowing war scenes.

Likes classical music, astronomy, Russia, his "Hupmobile," sophisticated women and airdales.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The senior class held a "brown giant" sale at the close of the activity period last Thursday and did a rushing business. Another special sale will be held by the senior class on October 9 at the same hour. The class is busy at present trying to decide about the school annual and making preparations for the Halloween Carnival to be held in the high school building the night of October 24. Members of the senior and junior classes attended the night football game at Dayton last Friday night as guests of the University of Dayton. Those who attended had a rather cool evening but nevertheless enjoyed the night contest.

The glee club is practicing daily making ready for the annual opera of the senior high school that will be given in the school auditorium on the nights of November 6 and 7 under the direction of Wm. Hugh Miller. "The Lass of Limerick Town" is an interesting and entertaining drama that can be well presented with a large cast. Miss Olive Allen, English teacher, will coach the cast and Miss Faye Cavanaugh, of the bookkeeping department, will coach the dances. Mr. Kennedy will be in charge of the scenery and Miss Hanna the costumes.

Quite a number of the high school students attended the Wittenberg vs. Georgetown football game at Springfield last Friday night as guests of Wittenberg College.

The high school band is all pepped up over the fact that it is going to have bright, shiny uniforms this year and is practicing every day in order to make a fine appearance at the first home game a week from Saturday. Xenia will be trying to celebrate two victories that day in football and band. We hope they succeed in both cases.

The Hi-Y Club held a special luncheon Monday noon, September 29 and a large group attended the first affair of this kind this year. Earl Rhoades, head of Dayton and Montgomery County Hi-Y Clubs, was guest speaker for the occasion.

The first meeting of the agriculture club was held September 17 in the school building. There was no business of vital importance and so the meeting was adjourned within a short time, after its calling. The president, Loren Harner, appointed committees to make arrangements for refreshments and initiation for the next meeting on October 15. New members will be admitted at this meeting from the freshmen and sophomore classes. A special assembly was held last Thursday at which time cheer leaders, for the present year were chosen by the student body. Those who desired to become cheer leaders were given a chance to lead in a cheer and then the students voted on those as they wished them to rank in ability to lead cheers. Nine students were tried out and William Wolf and Richard Adair were chosen as the two best cheer leaders.

Those who are interested in debate are working daily under the direction of Mr. Shumaker, coach of the team, and are becoming more acquainted in the art of debating. The subject for debate this year is as follows: Resolved—that the principle of the chain store is detrimental to the best interests of the community.

The last edition of the Central High Review was published last Friday. It was decided to do away with the school paper as there was n't enough interest to keep it going without going into debt by a large margin. Different classes may, however, edit special editions at their own cost during the year. Arrangements are being made to form a junior senior French club in Central this year. Miss Jones, teacher in French, will be the club advisor. Meetings will probably be held at different home of the members of the club.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

WATCH AND PRAY—Watch therefore; for we know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh.—Matt. 25:13.

NARROW ESCAPES

People often return from some automobile trip, and boast of narrow escapes they have had from accidents. If they had not shown unusual quickness and skill in some bad situation, they boast, they would have been smashed up by some reckless driver.

In most cases of such narrow escapes, however, both parties were somewhat to blame. Probably the one who boasted of the narrow escape, had himself taken a bit of a chance, or had allowed his attention to wander for a minute.

If people wish to be sure of avoiding automobile accidents, they must so drive their cars that accidents would be nearly impossible. This is not so difficult as it sounds, only it does call for self control.

It may call for a driver to wait for a whole minute at some intersection until there is a good clear chance to cross, while if he attempts to slip in before, he may take a bit of a chance that he has missed his calculations. If people had the right spirit of patience, the good natured willingness to wait their turn and keep cool and comfortable, they would find that their chances of a mishap were greatly reduced.

If people come home with the recollection of having had some narrow escape, the chances are that their driving habits are at fault, and should be corrected. They would better review the circumstances of such incidents, and ask themselves what they gained by the little error of operation that they made, and they should resolve to show more caution in that respect in the future.

The loss of a minute of time is not a serious thing. It is not as if one's house were burning down, or someone was drowning in the nearby river and help must come instantly. Our people should acquire a greater sense of proportion, and conclude that it never pays to save time by taking chances.

WHAT'S THE REASON

The French novelists who are talking loudly about fighting "infamous personality mongering" by hereafter issuing their books anonymously, doubtless have their reasons for the agitation they have started. Some of them may feel they are slipping, and that books sent out minus their signatures will sell better for the omission. Some of them may be attracted by what looks like a good advertising scheme in the form of a big guessing contest which the members of the public will hasten to enter, the result being a fine sale of books. But of one thing we may feel sure. The resort to anonymity is not caused by modesty, not where French writers are concerned.

From the way the Chinese keep on fighting among themselves and killing one another, a person might almost suspect that they are trying to emulate the habits of Christian Europe.

The New York Times notes that according to the cyclopedia the climate of Nebraska is "dry and exhilarating." Have they invented some sort of non-liquid alcohol out there?

Doubtless the meek will inherit the earth in due time, but at present it looks as though they are going to wait a long time before getting possession of their patrimony.

Maybe the individual who said that the average American takes 15,908 steps a day was thinking of car mileage.

"Who is progressive?" asks the Milwaukee Journal. Generally the person agreeing with the man using the word.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

BOREDOM AND ENVY

The scramble for great wealth comes from the boredom of the rich and the envy of the poor. If the poor knew how unhappy most of the rich are they would not be so envious. Poverty comes because we are not sufficiently civilized to know how to adjust production and consumption. Over-production comes through stupidity. After ten times as many years on the earth as our little histories record, man is still too stupid to know how to take care of himself. Another twenty thousand years and we may have wiped out ignorance. A few thousand years after that we may have solved the problem of preventing poverty.

LEARNING SOMETHING

Ask a young graduate about something he ought to know and he says he can't tell you, because he didn't study that in school. It would be a sad little education you could confine it to the few years of school. If you aren't interested in a life-long habit of self-education, you aren't really interested in education at all.

COMPANIONABLE

Addison H. Day rides back and forth between New York and Chattanooga, N. J., on the train. So do others. The difference is that Mr. Day has been doing it 61 years—ever since the trains were lighted by coal oil lamps and heated with wood stoves. And he proves all change for new things is not better than the old way when he says that travel nowadays is more comfortable, but less companionable. Today people think they haven't time to be companionable. Of course they have time, except they don't know how to use it.

TIME

Speaking of time, we all have the same amount and there is a lot of it. A few know how to manage time. Most do not. The man who is always rushed is not always the busy one. He is just the one who isn't smart enough to manage time.

BEING OURSELVES

Says Dr. Truxal, sociology professor in Dartmouth: "The great temptation is to fall into a common standard. We want to be like everyone else. Be yourself. Be content when your own individuality is expressed. In a world where everything is standardized, where everyone fits a common pattern, the greatest need is for us to be ourselves."

This is a stimulating idea—sound but dangerous. No greater satisfaction can come in life than self-expression. To be oneself, to have an outstanding personality, to feel free, to fit into no common rut—it is all splendid. But to go ahead on that policy let us first be sure we have sense—and sense of duty.

THE QUESTION BOX

Central Press Wash. Bureau

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor the estimated value of old coins be given.

What is the value of a copy of a New York newspaper 130 years old and which carries the story of Washington's death?

No definite value could be set on such a copy. If it is one of a few such copies extant it might be submitted to the Congressional Library at Washington for appraisal and possible purchase, or to a museum.

Aviation

Are there any free aviation schools, government or otherwise, in the United States?

No, there are no free aviation schools except those of the United States army which are open only to army men. List of aviation schools may be obtained from the aviation departments of the New York Sunday newspapers or if you wish, write to the Department of Commerce, Bureau of Aeronautics, for list of accredited schools.

Forestry

Can you tell me where there is a forestry school, and how much would the expense be to attend one?

Most of the state universities maintain schools of forestry. The minimum cost of attending such a school would be between $600 and $700 annually. A degree can be obtained in four years.

Citizenship

Does the United States government force any person to become a citizen and when a person does not become a citizen, does the government take the liberty of sending him back to his native land, confiscating his property?

The United States government does not force any person to become a citizen. The matter is optional. Nor is an alien deported and his property confiscated without sufficient reason. The justice department determines, in the last analysis, whether or not there is sufficient reason for deporting any individual.

Birth Certificate

What is the difference between a baptismal certificate and a birth certificate?

A baptismal certificate is given by the church in which the infant is baptized, a religious rite, while a birth certificate is a public record required by local governments in the keeping of vital statistics. A birth certificate can be obtained by making application to the city clerk of the city in which the infant was born.

(NOTE: The following pamphlets may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin and a large stamped self-addressed envelope for each, to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington D. C.: "Who's Who in Hollywood," "Swimming," "Seeing Washington," Charles P. Stewart's treatise on "Our Government," and "The World War.")

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—Some day the movie magnates may overcome their wild desire to spend money. But that time seems far distant. An evidence of their lavishness may be seen in the matter of announcing a new production.

The announcements for a Broadway play seldom exceed $3,500. More often the amount is nearer $2,000. This sum includes newspaper advertising, lobby displays, photographs, mimeographs, knick-knacks and electric signs. It cost Jed Harris, for instance, $6,000 to raise the curtain on "Uncle Vanya."

"Hell's Angels," the latest Broadway movie "knockout," announced itself to The Lane for the trifling sum of $142,000—not counting the salary of Charlie Washburn, publicity director.

THOSE WERE THE DAYS

The partners of a large downtown wire house, while waiting round in the hope that a customer might drop in and place an order, read with some amusement the copy of a New York morning newspaper dated May, 1897.

A feature story in thirty-three-year-old paper entitled, "Starvation Days in Wall Street," painted a graphic picture of the dull business then ruling in the financial center. It pointed out that Stock Exchange seats cost $18,000 and that to justify such a large investment a member must make at least $900 a year in commissions, figuring at 5 per cent. "At the present rate of business this cannot be done," the article said.

LOST OR DISCARDED

One of the large mid-town hotels set its statistician to work the other day compiling figures on articles lost and found in the inn.

Old Charts-and-Checks found that one out of every 40 guests leaves some personal belonging behind when he checks out. More than 10,000 articles—everything from false teeth to nursing bottles have been left in rooms by the 475,000 guests who have been accommodated at the caravanserie since its opening nine months ago.

REPARATIONS MAKES STRANGE BEDFELLOWS

WASHINGTON.—Now that the nominations all have been made, one fact stands out in bold relief:

Every Republican candidate, who was fought for having opposed White House policies, won a place on the G. O. P. ticket. Without a single exception, wherever the "regulars" tried to beat an "insurgent" the latter triumphed. To be sure, some of them may be defeated in November, but if so, it will be by Democrats.

The series of "stand pat" reverses wound up with the worst one of all—in Wisconsin, where the governorship was at stake.

The others were senatorial contests.

Alphabetically Idaho heads the list. Although Senator Borah was a most effective Hoover presidential campaigner in 1928 and still calls himself a regular, he has done his best in congress against every important administration policy since the present White House tenant's inauguration.

Idaho Republicans renominated him almost unanimously.

Representative L. J. Dickinson, the Iowa G. O. P.'s senatorial choice, certainly is a regular, though quite a liberal one.

However, Gov. John Hammill, whom Dickinson beat for the nomination, professed to be a better regular than the latter. Moreover, Dickinson had the support of Senator Smith W. Brookhart, perhaps the most vehement insurgent who comes to Washington. Brookhart, at any rate, claims Dickinson's victory as a victory for himself.

In Michigan ex-Gov. Chase S. Osborn fiercely attacked Senator James Couzens for failing the president in every legislative emergency—and Couzens was renominated by a wide margin.

Senator Schall of Minnesota has not always voted with the progressives, but he has done so often enough to irritate the regulars into denying him a voice in the selection of federal appointees in the Gopher State; pretty drastic treatment, considering that he is the only Republican senator from that bailiwick—his colleague, Senator Shipstead, being a Farmer-Laborite.

the two dazzling lithographs of the Messiah and Mussolini.

I was curious as to the nature of the sign. He translated it for me: "It's a says here," he bang, "My dear friend, this is a my place where I make-a de mon." It is quite a small. When you all-a come an' sit for hours an' more, my clienty stay away because-a no room. They spend-a mon', so please, you will stay away—kindly, as I am American business man. My dear friend, I-a salute you!"

He turned to me and grinned. "You-a know," he added, "no parking!"

POSSIBILITIES.

Imagine the celebration that will have to be squandered, let us say on a Chaplin film—the scent that will have to be wafted across the theatre when the Inimitable Charlie stoops to pick up a quarter and ends by grinning and wiping his wet fingers on his baggy pants!

You can see the subtleties afforded by the innovation. You can also imagine the leeway the thing affords a theatre man with a naturally mean disposition.

But it may be that when the idea is perfected it will be found to be "skunk proof."

The regulars gave Schall a hot race for renomination, too—but he won.

It is no news that "regularity" put every ounce of strength it could muster into an effort to prevent Senator George W. Norris' renomination in Nebraska—equally is it no news that he was renominated in a walk.

Senator Pine's case of "insurgency" was unusually aggravated.

The Oklahoma man was quite regular. But somehow he appeared to take a violent personal dislike to the Hoover administration and turned insurgent, seemingly deliberately and maliciously. The regulars strove assiduously to checkmate his renomination, but he won it almost without effort.

With Senators Norris, La Follette and Elaine, Senator McMaster of South Dakota has been one of the four most irreconcilable progressives in Washington throughout the term. The stand-patters fought him wellnigh to a draw, trying to keep his name off the G. O. P. ticket this fall—but, by a tight squeak, he got it on.

The Wisconsin result, involving no senate seat this year, does not immediately affect the Washington situation in a material sense, but its psychological significance here is enormous.

The Badger State campaign was waged perhaps most exclusively on the issue of the national administration's policies than any other in the country.

If there was any doubt concerning its outcome, at least none was entertained at the headquarters of the beaten regular candidate for renomination, with the succinct statement attributing defeat to too heavy a burden of carrying Hoover.

Of course here are plenty of states where the G. O. P. nominations (and the Democratic nominations also, for that matter) are as regular as orthodoxy could desire.

That is to say, where insurgency was not in the race it scored no victories.

Where it was represented, however, that was all it did score.

Regularity probably doesn't like it, but it will have hard work getting away from the record.

LUNCHEON No. 1

Tuna Salad
Creamed Potatoes
Orange Marmalade
Lemon Sherbert
Gold Cookies
Coffee

LUNCHEON No. 2

Raw Vegetable Salad
Hot Sliced Ham
Toasted Eggplant Muffins
Maple Mousse
Nut Cookies
Minted Iced or Hot Tea

Here are two luncheon menus that would serve either for family consumption or for guests. Each will serve six people.

Today's Recipes

Tuna Salad—One and one-half cups diced celery, one and one-half cups flaked tuna, two hard cooked eggs, diced; one-fourth cup chopped sweet pickles, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-eighth cup salad dressing, six sliced pimento stuffed olives. Mix the celery, tuna, eggs, pickles, salt, paprika and dressing. Chill. Serve in cups of crisp lettuce leaves and top with the olives.

Raw Vegetable Salad—Cucumber, beet, carrot, tomato, cabbage, green pepper, lettuce, mayonnaise. In the center of each individual plate place a large slice of tomato and sprinkle with bits of green pepper. Around it arrange small lettuce leaves. In one leaf place two tablespoons mayonnaise, and in each of the other places the various vegetables—the raw beet and carrot cut in tiny strips, the cabbage grated and the cucumber sliced thin. All the vegetables should be chilled before serving.

Suggestions

Using an Old Thermos
Here is a way to utilize part of the old thermos bottle. When the glass receptacle in quart or pint thermos bottle becomes broken, the outer or metal part of thermos makes a very serviceable porch vase. Paint it to harmonize with your furnishings and it will last indefinitely.

Radishes

Peel radishes, slice and boil in drain water, add milk, butter, salt slightly salted water, when tender, and pepper to taste. Serve as a side dish. These may be eaten by persons who cannot eat them raw.

Remember to drain boiled potatoes the moment they are done, return the kettle to the burner, which is still hot, and leave uncovered to dry out.

Thin Person Should Take Rest

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The peculiar anatomy and physiology of thin people was discussed yesterday. We saw that the constitutionally thin person not only had a narrow external build, but that this went with certain arrangements of the internal organs. The lungs are large. The stomach and intestines hang low. In attempting to gain weight all these peculiarities must be taken into account. Simply giving them a rich, fattening diet will not do.

First, if you are one of these people, and want to gain weight, you must learn to rest. Since your muscles are not as strong as a normal person's, you cannot take as much exercise as he does. Your muscles are probably long, and the actual performance of any given action tires them more. Therefore, for you especially, resting and relaxing is essential. You should always have at least eight to nine hours of sleep at night. Or if you don't sleep you should be in bed that long. Then a rest period—lying down on a couch—after lunch and dinners—is imperative.

Secondly, you must help your stomach get rid of the food eaten. When you are standing erect the lowest part of your stomach is the food in it away back in the outlet of the stomach to move the food up to that high point. But if you will lie down after every meal on a couch, on your right side, this will help the stomach empty.

Thus the rest period is good for the stomach and the muscles as well.

Thirdly, constipation is often a troublesome symptom with these people. However, a drastic cathartic is not to be recommended. It is too irritating. Petroleum (mineral oil) or psyllium seed or bran are all good forms of cathartics for you. If not those, a soap suds enema two or three times a week. Or olive oil injected into the bowels on going to bed.

So far as the diet itself is concerned, it should have several things. Fat and sugar, of course, are the best substances to put on weight. Fat may, however, cause indigestion. However, olive oil and butter in abundance usually will not. Nor will cream. Cream in the form of a half milk and half cream—a glass of half milk and half cream to be drunk on going to bed, is an excellent idea.

Too much water, or fluid at one meal should be avoided. It is heavy and sags the stomach down. In the normal person water hardly stays in the stomach at all, but you thin people have such weak stomach walls that the water is likely to accumulate and sag the lower end of the stomach down. Bread is a good fattener, and a piece of meat once a day is highly desirable. The meat has a specific dynamic action, as it is called, and speeds up the processes of nutrition all along the line.

Instead of three large meals it is much better for you to have six small ones. The large ones will overload the stomach and make digestion slow and uncomfortable. But small meals will leave the stomach empty, and hence more completely digested, and hence more completely absorbed and utilized. The three extra meals should be spaced in the middle of the afternoon and before going to bed.

Ignore Hubby's Sulks, Virginia

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I read your column every day and am going to ask you for some advice. What would you do with a pouting husband? My husband and I have gotten along fine until a year ago a woman came between us, and when I found out what was going on, set my foot down. It almost broke my heart, and our home has never been the same, for he takes spite. Pouts for days and nights at a time, and acts like he hasn't any love or feeling for me. Then he gets over it, little by little, and seems to be as loving as ever."

"I just have to be good to him, and I love him better than life, but wonder if I should treat him as he does me if it would break him of this? I mean to put it up to him, this is all the way he ever mistreats me. He never grows at anything I do, and provides well, but I would give anything to break these pouting spells. PATSY."

You think maybe if you took to acting like a big baby too it might cure him, eh? I don't believe it would work, Patsy. I think ignoring him and acting as if everything was as usual would be more effective. If when he comes home in pouting mood you either have some friends in or go out with some women friends and act as cheerful as usual he may snap out of it in time.

Part of his sulking may be caused by his conscience troubling him, and part by a feeling of hurt pride that you "put your foot down" so effectively. He's been spanked and resents it. Let us hope, for your sake, he'll outgrow his pouting spells. If he doesn't it may be necessary for you to put the other foot down with equal force.

"MY DEAR VIRGINIA: I met a girl two years ago and fell deeply in love with her and have gone so far as to be engaged and set the date for the wedding, but her mother has changed her girl's mind. Now I have enough to worry me and I love her dearly. Not only that, but the girl is 22 years old and I 25."

It's a sad fact that there are some people—both fat and lean—that just don't attract members of the other sex. If you really are one of those people you must, for your own happiness, adopt what the psychologists call a "constructive compromise." Go into some kind of work or adopt some hobby that will fill your life with satisfaction and keep you from being lonely.

Treat Scalp Before Hair Grows

By GLADYS GLAD

Despite the fact that long tresses now are definitely in vogue, one screen actress has adopted a short coiffure. She has discarded her long bob and wears her hair at a flapperish ear-length just at present.

Nevertheless, the majority of the younger women are allowing their hair to grow long. And many of them are just beginning to discover how distressingly thin their tresses are. The reason that they had not been aware of the condition before is that excessive shedding of hair isn't so noticeable if the hair is short. It's when the hairs are extremely long that the loss of a number of them shows up plainly and impresses us with the need of vigorous treatments to restore the scalp to health.

Those of you who intend to let your hair grow should have your scalps examined first by a physician or a scalp specialist. Then undergo whatever treatments are necessary before you start the growing.

It is much simpler to treat short hair than long hair. Massage is greatly simplified when the hair is short. Shampoos are much more easily done. Oil treatments or saline applications are not half as difficult to administer.

The wisest course is to get the hair and scalp into a beautiful, healthy condition before allowing the hair to grow. Your hair and scalp will greatly reward the growth of your tresses.

If you have suffered from infections on the neck, due to the use of unsterilized clippers, or from broken hairs, due to the fineness of the hair and the tenderness of the skin at the nape of the neck, be sure that these conditions are completely removed before you start to let your hair grow.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Judy: A pure castile soap is excellent for use on the skin. Witch hazel will help to remove the excess oil from your skin, as it is a drying solution.

Reduce Bust
J. L. B.: My method of reducing the bust is too long to print in this brief space. However, the process is fully outlined in my booklet on "The New Figure."

Bleach
B. L.: You may find the following bleach more effective than the one you have been using: Two ounces of rose water, one ounce of glycerine, and four ounces of lactic acid.

Cosmetics
J. L. B.: I think that a soft peach shade of powder, soft orange rouge and light lipstick would blend harmoniously with your coloring.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Who will be the pitchers in the opening game of the world's series?

In our opinion, which is worth no more than that of anyone else with the exception of Connie Mack and Gabby Street, Lefty Grove will be the starting hurler for the A's. Grove did not start a single game in the 1929 series, but he is a star hurler on the Athletics staff and is certain to see plenty of action against the Cardinals. It is only natural that he should receive the opening assignment although Mr. Mack is a tricky manager and may again surprise the boys like he did last year when he singled out Howie Ehmke to twirl the first game.

The starting pitcher for St. Louis is also problematical. The choice probably lies between "Wild Bill" Hallahan and Grimes. The experts are of the opinion that Grimes will be the pitching star of the series. We are inclined to the belief he may start the first game because the Athletics have a distinct preference for the southpaw brand of hurling.

Philadelphia reigns a 7 to 5 favorite to take the series but it will probably not be in four straight games.

More than any other style of attack, Knute Rockne's system of offense has caused football rule makers great concern.

To balance the offense and the defense is one of the duties of the rules committee. If innovations in offense threaten to overwhelm the defense, the rule makers have strengthened the defense. There have been occasions when the defense held the balance of power. Either situation detracts from the spectacle of the sport. There must be equality between the two.

Football's popularity with the masses probably dates from the adoption of the forward pass. The aerial game ended the regime of brute strength. No longer is physical power alone supreme for the player must temper his play with intelligence. Particularly is this true of the player on defense.

A fourth method of advancing the ball was introduced with the forward pass. The offense has a choice of plunging directly into the line, or perhaps at a slant inside of the defensive tackle; running wide in an attempt to turn the end of the defensive line; kicking or passing.

Bill Baxley discloses that a tentative schedule which he has arranged for the proposed Lang Chevrolet Co. independent basketball team for the coming season includes seventeen games. Of this number nine contests will be played in Xenia at the National Guard Armory. Most of the home games are in the middle of the week, with perhaps one on Saturday if the Armory floor is available.

While listening in on a play-by-play description of the final baseball game between the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs over radio Sunday afternoon, Tom Hollen-camp heard a good one. Just after the Reds had scored nine runs in the second inning, a fan wired in to ask: "Who is managing the Cubs now?"

National League managers have discovered that one sure way of losing their jobs is to pilot their teams to a league championship.

Bill McKee won the pennant for the Pirates in 1925 and then got the air. He did the same thing for the Cardinals in 1928 and again was fired. In 1927 Donnie Bush had a similar experience after he had won the flag for Pittsburgh. After bringing the 1926 pennant to St. Louis, Rogers Hornsby went the way of the others. The latest victim is Joe McCarthy, who converted the Cubs from a last-place club into a pennant winner in four years. Now he has been given the gate in favor of Hornsby. Gabby Street, St. Louis manager this year, is the only exception. He led the Cards to another championship and has been given another contract. Wonder what his pull is with the magnates.

BUCS BUCK AGAIN BLOCKING MACHINE

Undaunted by the 37 to 0 wallowing it received in its opening game of the season last Friday, Xenia Central High's grid squad buckled down to hard scrimmage practice Monday afternoon and commenced preparations for the game with Wilmington High at Wilmington Friday afternoon this week.

The first part of the afternoon's drill was devoted to a chalk talk, after which the Bucs, having emerged from the Washington C. H. struggle in good physical shape, all things considered, went through a stiff scrimmage session which lasted until 6:45 p. m.

Coch Wilson is having a blocking machine constructed in the hope that this device will prove helpful to the players, enabling them to improve in this department of the pastime.

The Bucs have no alibi for the severe whipping last Friday. Scores of that size do not permit of much explanation except sheer superiority, but they intend to give a better account of themselves against their ancient Quaker foe Friday.

Grimes To Open For Cards Against Mackmen

HURLER CONFIDENT OF BEATING CHAMPS IN SERIES CONTEST

Mack Undecided On
Pitcher; Teams In
Good Spirits

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Sports
Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—Burling Grimes, the great "money pitcher" of the St. Louis Cardinals, today declared with a touch of truculence in his manner that he is going to hurl the opening game of the world series here tomorrow against the Philadelphia Athletics and, in the next breath, scornfully demanded to know "what all this secrecy is about—concerning whom the A's will pitch."

"I'm going to beat the A's," said Grimes with sublime confidence. "All we've got to do is to watch three players—Simmons, Fox and Cochrane. They have got to watch nine. If I can't handle this team I'm ready for the old man's home."

Grimes was standing in the lobby of the downtown hotel at which the carefree and dashing red birds of St. Louis are quartered. They were "killing time" before leaving for Shibe Park where, at 1 o'clock this afternoon, they will indulge in a workout to familiarize themselves with the grounds.

Nearby sat Manager Gabby Street, opening telegrams and pulling away serenely at a black pipe. Lounging on a settee were Frankie Frisch, "Sunny Jim" Bottomley, Taylor Douthett, Sparky Adams, Flint Rhem and other Cardinals. The players were industriously "punching the bag," with baseball and the impending world series the sole topic of conversation.

The "secret practice" of the A's had come under discussion. It seems Connie Mack, the old fox of the dugouts, had put his club through a secret drill, Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, and Tris Speaker, the old outfield star, were among the few privileged onlookers. Even the ticket sellers and ball park loungers were ousted while Manager Mack coached the twenty-four "A's" who are eligible to take part in the series.

Drill in the series, it is understood, was held for the purpose of breaking in a new set of signals. Manager Street had finished his telegrams and started to leave the lobby. As he passed, I asked him if he had definitely decided to start Grimes.

"Yes, he's elected," said Street. "I have five good starting pitchers but I think the situation favors Grimes."

Street was asked if he was worrying about any surprise move Connie Mack might make.

A smile mantled the creased countenance of Gabby as he smilingly replied: "Well, he can run his club his way. I'll run mine just as I have been."

"You know," added Street nonchalantly, "my club isn't worrying about anything. We're here in Philadelphia just to play a couple of ball games. That's all—just a couple of ball games."

As Street disappeared in the crowded lobby, Grimes remarked: "There's a great guy, Gabby Street. Do you know, he was my catcher when I was with Chattanooga in 1913. He's the best manager I ever played for."

Manager Mack of the A's, meanwhile, was maintaining the utmost secrecy regarding his pitching plans for the series. The experts are looking for Mack to start Shores, Rommel, Walberg, Quinn or some other unlooked for entry, holding his ace—Grove and Ehmke—in reserve. But the Athletics' leader may surprise everybody by doing the orthodox and using Grove.

"I want my boys to go into this series in the right mental condition," said Mack today. "I want them to go about their work quietly and efficiently and not get excited about this series. After all these are just ball games such as we have been playing every day all season."

"Waiting for the series to start is harder on the players' nerves than the actual games. Except for the youngsters I have a team which has been through one world series and this should help to a mental standpoint. Physically, the team is in great shape."

"I won't predict the outcome of the series. It should be a great battle for the Cards could not be anything but a remarkable team to come from behind as they did to win the National League pennant."

Ford Frick, noted New York sports writer, will give the expert opinion on the National Broadcasting system.

The broadcast in Philadelphia tomorrow will start at 1 o'clock Eastern Standard time, while the St. Louis games will be broadcast at 2:15 Eastern Standard time.

WORLD SERIES SIZEUP Shortstop

JOE BOLEY IS ONE OF THE BEST SHORTSTOPS IN THE MAJORS

By JACK SORDS
Central Press Sports Artist

The Cardinals appear to be stronger at shortstop than the Athletics. At the short position the St. Louis club has a corner in young Gelbert, a good hitter and fielder, but who, however, has been excelled this season by his own teammate, Sparky Adams. Adams has seen duty at short this year as well as at second and third.

It is probable that Manager Gabby Street would start Adams at short as Frankie Frisch and Andy

Farm Notes

DO CROPS "RUN OUT"? Whether or not crops will "run out" depends upon what is meant by the term. According to G. H. Stringfield, associate in Agronomy at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, the term "running out" is commonly used to express a real or supposed permanent hereditary change which seriously lowers the productive capacity of the crop. Some crops, as in the case of potatoes, may accumulate disease infection with consequent appearance of a "running out" process. This, however, involves no hereditary change and if the crop could be made free of all disease it would grow again as vigorously as before. Crops often become so foul with weed seed or so mixed with other crop seed as to lower markedly the quantity or quality of yield. An hereditary change may or may not occur in these cases, depending upon whether or not cross-fertilization takes place between the crop and its impurity. Natural cross-fertilization is in general less common than is usually supposed. For instance, pumpkins and watermelons, or cucumbers and muskmelons, will not mix. Wheat will cross with rye occasionally but the progeny is usually sterile. Different varieties of the same crop will, however, often cross sufficiently to affect materially the seed value of both.

The old belief that some small grain crops will now and then "run out" so completely that they turn to cheat, persists in places. If care is taken to eliminate all cheat seed no cheat will appear. It grows only from seed of its own kind. Crops may pass through marked changes in becoming adapted to a new environment. This is particularly true with naturally cross-pollinated crops such as corn. The situation here is not one of "running out" but rather it is a process in which those plants best suited to the environment thrive best and produce the most seed for each succeeding generation.

Crops are often so nearly starved for want of plant food that they appear to have "run out," but with new seedling on fertile soil and with favorable climatic conditions this is rapidly overcome.

At the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, numerous cereal varieties have been grown year after year during more than a quarter of a century and none of them show evidence of any "running out" process.

White declared that while Bulkley and Democratic senators and representatives in Washington would be striving to remove the unnecessary tariff burdens, it would be his duty as governor to assist the general assembly in revising the laws relating to taxation in Ohio.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—Fair and cool weather is in prospect for the first two games of the world series here tomorrow and Thursday. Top coats were in order today as the (virtually) clear skies and a chilly autumn wind prevailed for the practice sessions of the Cardinals and Athletics today.

ROCKEFELLER BUILDS MODEL COMMUNITY ON ESTATE

Cleveland is inspecting its first model community for the younger executive and professional class, the brain-child of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., which is rapidly taking shape. Eighty-one of the 1,000 homes planned for the development are practically completed. They are situated on the old Forest Hill estate of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., and many of the beautiful trees which surrounded the Rockefeller mansion have been used in landscaping. All of the homes are English style and an office building is being erected, designed to conform to the same type of architecture. Above, a group of finished homes, architect's drawing of the office building, in the style of an old English inn, and a diagram of the entire project. Approximately $2,000,000 has been spent to the present. The total cost will be in millions.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS IN SKETCHES

POUND FOR POUND A BABY USES THREE TIMES AS MUCH WATER AS AN ADULT.

LACK OF WATER IN THE BABY'S DIET PREVENTS A NORMAL GAIN IN WEIGHT.

A GENEROUS SUPPLY OF ALL THE VITAMINS IS ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY FOR THE BABY'S PROPER HEALTH AND DEVELOPMENT.

COWS' MILK HAS MORE VITAMIN "B" THAN MOTHERS' MILK BUT PASTEURIZATION DESTROYS LARGE AMOUNTS OF THE NECESSARY VITAMIN "D"

In order to present succinctly to mothers a few important facts on the feeding of babies, R. J. Scott, artist, has illustrated one of the most comprehensive of the daily diet and health articles of Dr. Logan Clendening, Central Press' famous medical writer. Dr. Clendening considers the proper diet for babies as one of the chief factors in building up the health of the nation and cutting infant mortality, and has devoted a brilliant and fascinating series of his daily articles to the subject.

COST OF RESIDENCE BUILDING CRASHES

Residences Can Be Built For One-Fifth Less Than In 1929—Good Investment As Well As Home At Reasonable Price.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—According to the experience of a middle west lumber dealer, a frame house can now be built for about 13 per cent less than in the spring of 1929. In some localities the difference is probably as much as 20 per cent.

Manager Adolph Pfund of the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association, reports that a lumberman in a mid-west city recently called for an itemized bid on the construction of a frame dwelling reproducing exactly one that was erected in March and April 1929, on which all cost data were available. The contractor not only undertook to make a replica of the house for $4,349.46, instead of $5,013.33 (exclusive of his own commission) but undertook to guarantee his bid.

These figures do not include the contractor's profit.

Within the last ten months literally millions of thrifty Americans have taken advantage of the low prices of stocks and bonds to make long-term investments. For the family man a home is both an investment and a home. It is just as wise for such a man to put his funds into a house at these lowest prices of a decade as it is for him to buy sound stocks and bonds.

What is true of the erection of a new house also applies to repairs, alterations and modernization. It is learned that in some cities, Washington, D. C., for example, there is such a realization on the part of homeowners that the present is a most opportune time for rebuilding and improving; that contractors find that people whose capacity to foot the bills is doubtful are still very eager to undergo great hardships in order to take advantage of current conditions and average up present costs and valuations of their houses when improved, as against excessive original construction costs.

STATISTICS AND FORECASTS

Article No. 5
NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—There is an ancient maxim which says that "figures don't lie, but liars can figure."

In the maze of statistical data and information of all kinds with which the modern investor is almost daily confronted, there is a danger that important facts shall go unnoticed and their significance entirely lost. It is for that reason that the service of reliable agencies are considered of great value to bankers, industrial leaders, manufacturers, merchants and investors all over the country.

These statistical bureaus seek to make themselves useful to business men and investors through two particular channels:

1. Furnishing of accurate and intelligible information.

2. Forecasting the trend of future markets and prices.

Many business men are quite willing to accept the first line of service at its face value and to derive considerable benefit from its use. They are not quite so ready, however, to credit the ability of these agencies to forecast the future. It looks to them too much like soothsaying, or prophesying, and in many cases, this forecasting seems to be a little better than a blind step in the dark. However, industrial forecasting is becoming more and more of an exact science, particularly when the best accepted scientific principles are employed in the process.

Supply and demand are the great factors governing the buying and selling of goods as well as securities. It stands to reason, therefore, that an individual or an agency in possession of important facts about who wants to buy, who wants to sell, who is in greatest need of goods and such pertinent points, is in position to tell with reasonable accuracy in which way prices are likely to move. Repeated a few hundred thousand or a million times, the process develops into national forecasting on a fairly reliable scale. Such forecasting has been so fully accepted by a

TO BUILD MAILING VESTIBULE HERE

Sealed bids will be received at the Xenia Post Office until 3 p. m. October 8 for the construction of a new and larger mailing vestibule in the rear of the federal building, according to an announcement by Postmaster C. S. Frazer.

The present enclosed entrance will be three times the size of the present vestibule and will have two doors, one for incoming and another for outgoing mail, whereas the present passage way, built before the days of parcel post, has only one door and is of inadequate size.

The addition to be built will be one story in height, will be twice as wide as the present vestibule and will project out fourteen instead of ten feet as at present.

material, equipment and labor, except gas service, surveying, insurance and the building permit (which were identical), was lower than a year ago. The greatest decreases were in excavation, 35 per cent; and in finish hardware, also 35 per cent. Next in lower price were window shades, which were down 33 per cent; then came tile, 24 per cent; worked lumber 20 per cent; painting 16 per cent; yard lumber, 14 per cent; mason work 12 per cent; carpenter work, 10 per cent; and wiring 10 per cent. The items in which there were only negligible reductions were plastering, plumbing, heating and rough hardware. The following table gives the details of the bid. They do not include the contractor's profit which, however, would probably be figured on a lower percentage basis than in 1929.

House No. 642

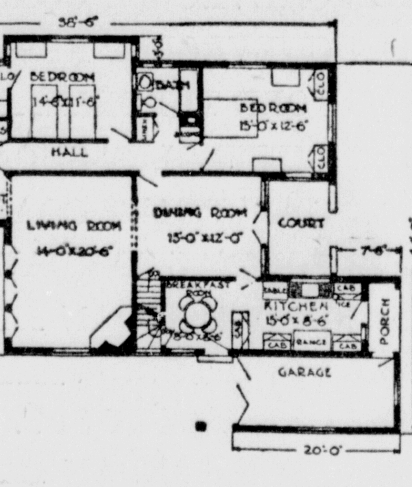

THE old thatched cottages of England seem to be recalled by the design and treatment of this bungalow. The fitting eyebrow dormer in front and a larger one in the back give light and ventilation to the attic where an additional room can be provided if needed.

Face brick has been chosen as the material best adapted to carry out the beauty in the design. The wide range of colors available give to the builder his selection of colors that harmonize with the landscaping and at the same time the brick lend their permanence and strength to the home. Given a Flemish bond—which means that every other brick is headed out, with mortar colored to contrast with the color of the brick, this home takes on an individuality of appearance that is charming.

Through a vestibule one enters either a hall on the left which leads to the bedrooms or the living room on the right. The bedrooms all are of good size and conveniently located near the bath. Each room has windows on three sides, insuring good ventilation and an abundance of light. A fireplace is provided in the front bedroom, which can be used as a library, or den in the event it is not needed for sleeping purposes. The living room has three casement windows across the front and a single, good-sized window on the side wall, next to the fireplace which has been placed in the corner.

A large arched opening between the living and dining rooms gives the effect of one long room when viewed from either end. In the dining room, the window is of ample size to permit good daylight and opens onto a court which has been designed for the rear of the house. The breakfast room and kitchen adjoin and both are equipped with cabinets. The rear porch is as wide as the kitchen and opens directly into the attached garage. The garage can also be entered from the front through a door leading from the breakfast room. The ceiling height of this home is 8 feet 6 inches and the content is 33,000 cubic feet. A 55-foot lot is ample to accommodate it, and if the garage is placed in the rear, a lot of 45 feet in width will suffice.

CAPTURE AUTO A BANDONED BY THIEVES WHO RAIDED ORCHARD

County authorities are endeavoring to trace ownership of a Ford roadster bearing license plates issued at Middletown, O., which was hastily abandoned by thieves who fled in a hail of buckshot when their plans to rob an apple orchard north of Mt. Zion Church at the junction of the Zimmerman-Bellbrook and Indian Riffle Road were frustrated late Monday night.

Charles Greer, who had rented the large orchard from Harry Darst, had taken precautionary measures to prevent a recurrence of a theft last Saturday night when the orchard was invaded and two trees were stripped of the fruit.

To guard against a repetition of the incident, Greer and a companion armed themselves with shotguns, put up a tent in the orchard to sleep in, and installed a bell in one of the trees. Attached to the bell were lines of twine or wire intended for unsuspecting intruders to trip over, thereby sounding an alarm.

Two attempts to rob the orchard were made Monday night. The first occurred at 10 o'clock. Aroused by the ringing of the alarm, Greer and his companion sighted several shadowy figures in the semi-darkness and five shots were sent in their direction as they ran toward the road. The marauders made their getaway in an auto parked along the road.

An hour later a second attempt was made to loot the orchard but the bell again sounded the alarm. Once more several shots were fired at indistinct figures but this time the guardians of the orchard were the first to reach an auto parked along the road and the would-be thieves, discovering their escape by this method cut off, fled on foot in another direction.

Deputy George Sheriff George Sudgen was summoned from his home at Alpha and when he arrived at the orchard he found a large number of farmers milling around and armed with shot guns. A search of the confiscated roadster revealed an empty basket and a few stray apples as well as other paraphernalia commonly used by apple thieves in their activities, the deputy sheriff said.

REFRIGERATION ESSENTIAL TO INDUSTRY

America is a happy nation and electric refrigeration is playing an important part in maintaining this happiness. What would we do if our ice cream were taken away from us or if our theaters were not air cooled, to say nothing of the more essential uses of electric refrigeration.

It would be a problem if we did not have means of refrigerating our food, or if our hospitals could not properly preserve their vaccines and antitoxins. Many hospitals and sanitariums find electric refrigeration a necessity, not only in their laboratories, but in their kitchens.

Consider milk alone. No other food is as vital to the human race. And milk depends entirely on perfect refrigeration for its purity.

Considering the part that electric

refrigeration is playing in saving the food supply of the nation, one can realize the vital relationship electric refrigeration has to civilization.

There are a million pounds of meat, fruit, etc., in cold storage every day in the year. Without electric refrigeration, it is safe to say that neither the huge meat packing or fruit growing industries would be possible. Our diets would be changed. Each family would preserve in the old fashioned well or spring house, only those foods produced in its particular locality. Because of the waste due to spoilage, it would be impractical to store produce great distances or to ship it in large quantities.

Storing and preserving foods by old fashioned methods is possible. It is also possible to supply illumination by oil lamps, or heat by burning chopped logs from nearby forests. The inconvenience and inefficiency resulting from antiquated lighting and heating methods cannot be compared with the dangers of improper preservation of food. We can thank the research and engineering minds of the country for their great contribution to health and happiness—the electric

MINIATURE GOLF IS PUZZLE TO CAPITAL COMMISSION BODY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Golfers say it's not golf. It's nothing like croquet. In fact none of the various sports has claimed it as an offspring.

With this helpful information the three commissioners of the District of Columbia solemnly assembled to do something no other living person has done. The matter before this august body was to define a miniature golf course.

"What is it?" the presiding commissioner asked commissioner number two. He, in turn, passed the query along to commissioner number three. The latter, not wanting to speak out of order, waited for his colleague, number two, to answer. No answer came and the definition of what constitutes miniature golf was left to that part of the record labeled "unfinished business."

The commissioners could only decide that the game with the clubs and balls is not like stage plays, moving pictures and other "commercial amusements," any one of which any person can define.

Their decision was not reached until after rather lengthy and serious consideration. With Joseph Fitzgerald, Jr., representing the association of miniature golf courses, doing most of the talking, he dodged the question asked earlier at the hearing: "What is it?" He said most everything else however, in declaring the game is different from other commercial amusements and should not have to close at 11:30 p. m. as such.

One owner stepped up during one of Fitzgerald's rest pauses to state his receipts have dwindled almost to half of those he took in when the courses were permitted to remain open until the wee hours of the morning.

Fitzgerald said the public was entitled to play the little game of whatever-it-is.

"Most of our patronage comes after the theaters close down," he said. "Patrons like to play a round or so before going home—and to bed."

And before the commissioners quit for the day they lifted miniature golf from the "commercial amusement" class and ruled the courses in the District can remain open until 1 a. m. on week days, midnight on Saturdays.

The Theater

The deaths of such prominent movie stars as Lon Chaney and Milton Sills within the last few weeks, serves to emphasize the passing of stars whose suns were once expected never to set.

Chaney, Sills, Ralph Ince, Barbara La Marr, Olive Thomas, Harold Lockwood, Rudolph Valentino, Theodore Roberts, John Bunny, Wally Reid, Mabel Normand and other lesser satellites in the film firmament have passed on, but there are others, still living, who are known to the present generation only in memory.

Marguerite Clark is married to a wealthy merchant and lives in a suburb of New Orleans. She wrote her memoirs for a magazine some time ago and expressed no regret at the fact that she has passed in to practical oblivion from a position as one of the country's most charming and popular actresses.

Katherine MacDonal, once agreed upon as the most beautiful actress in pictures, known as "The American Beauty," is also happily married to a millionaire and lives in Montecito. Her husband is Christian R. Holmes, a nephew of Max Fleishmann, the yeast king.

Ella Hall plays extra and bit parts now. Jack Hoxie the Western star, works in a circus. Beverly Bayne, once one of the leading stars, picture teammate and later wife of Francis X. Bushman, lives in retirement on Long Island. Eva and Jane Novak are also retired and both live in the San Fernando Valley.

Mary MacLaren owns a decorating shop in Hollywood. Mae Marsh is retired, married and lives in Pasadena. Anna May Wong, the little Chinese actress, is appearing on the stage in Vienna. Juanita Hansen is retired and lives in Hollywood. Wanda Hawley is retired and also lives in the film colony and Pearl White, heroine of many a sensational serial picture, is running a casino on the Riviera. J. Warren Kerrigan, one of the brightest of the early stars, is retired and lives in Hollywood on the fortune he made in pictures and John Bowers is in the airplane business. Carl Foxe owns and runs a boys' military academy. Carol Dempster is married to a broker and lives in New York and Jacqueline Logan is working in English pictures. Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese player, occasionally plays in vaudeville and Ruth Stonehouse is married to a Hollywood voice teacher and is County Commissioners have employed John Jamison, colored, to serve as fireman for the Court House heating plant at an annual salary $1,080. Jamison's duties will include keeping the Court House lawn and shrubbery in first class condition in addition to taking care of the steam boiler. He had been assisting in this task for some time.

Mr. Forest Dunkle is now located in Memphis, Tenn., where he has a splendid position in the legal department of Carnival Co.

M. L. Wolf and J. H. Whitmer were re-elected directors of the Y. M. C. A. here for terms of three years.

George Galloway, Democrat, has been appointed by the probate judge to assist in the annual inspection of the county treasury.

co-operation, Lonsdale suggested a careful revision of the system to suit changing times.

"The way to progressive success is in all commercial and industrial effort," Lonsdale said, "is through the constant introduction of new economies. Against the institution of these economies, however, is often the menace of Sherman law interpretation. Such a system certainly was never intended to be as it is today."

Present business conditions, Lonsdale said, are the repercussion of the World War.

"We have lavished brain, effort, and millions of dollars in developing production, but there has been a notable lack of achievement in developing markets for what has been produced," he said.

Banking must go as business goes—with all of our people, with the needs of industry, commerce, agriculture and the average man. One of the crucial issues of the convention revolved about the future of chain banking. In some quarters it was believed that the convention may reverse its long-maintained stand in opposition to the extension of the branch system. Others felt that a compromise arrangement may be made.

Nearly 6,000 banker-delegates were in the city for today's important session. The convention will be drawn to a climax at its closing session Thursday when President Hoover is scheduled to deliver an address that is expected to be of the utmost significance in view of the recognized economic crisis.

Rome S. Stephenson of South Bend, Ind., first vice president of the association, is slated to be elected to the presidency, succeeding Lonsdale, at tomorrow's general session. Harry J. Haas of Philadelphia, second vice president, will be elevated to first vice president, and F. S. Sisson of New York, will be elected second vice president.

John W. Barton, vice president of the Metropolitan National Bank of Minneapolis, ignited the fireworks at the opening session of the convention yesterday with a strong address before the national bank division, of which he is president. The banker sharply criticized the tariff and immigration policies of the United States, which he said are an effort to "maintain our high standard of living against the rest of the world. The nation is producing a large surplus," he declared, and "if we do not buy, we cannot expect to sell."

"The present trend of government in business is socialistic in application," he charged. "We face distress unless this tendency is speedily and successfully checked."

Other highlights of yesterday's session included:

A demand for more liberal benefits for member banks from federal reserve bank earnings was made by O. Howard Wolfe, cashier of the Philadelphia National Bank.

Defense of the unit bank was made by Craig B. Hazelwood of Chicago, a former president of the A. B. A., who insisted upon sound bank management for the future well-being of the banking industry.

A resolution favoring continuance of the unit bank as against the chain system was adopted by the state bank division, composed of bankers who head smaller institutions.

Denial that the farmer has lost his buying power was made by Charles F. Collission, Minneapolis agricultural expert, who declared that products of the right kind of diversified livestock farming are above or in line with the general average of retail prices of the commodities that farmers buy.

MERCHANTS HEAR UTILITY'S STORY BUT RETAIN PLANS

Local business men and representatives of The Dayton Power and Light Co. played a question and answer game at the monthly dinner-meeting of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association at the Elks' Club Monday night.

At the invitation of the business men's organization, J. C. Matthieu and Attorney Charles Pfarrer, representing the D. P. and L. Co., attended the meeting and attempted to justify to the satisfaction of Xenia merchants, the company's proposed new rate schedules for commercial, residential and street lighting in Xenia.

Various business men propounded questions to the two Dayton men and the upshot of the meeting was that the association adopted a resolution to be forwarded to City Commission, requesting the city fathers to proceed along the same lines previously suggested by the organization, namely, to condemn and purchase the electric distribution system of the Dayton company in Xenia and open the light contracts to competitive bidding.

LET IT GROW, GIRLS

VIENNA, Sept. 30.—One "boyish bob" was thrown definitely into discard by the international congress of hairdressers in session here today.

A resolution was passed decreeing the complete and final death of close-cropped locks and shaven necks. Bobbed hair, the congress voted, was nothing less than "impossible" with the present long evening gowns "which require a stylish head-dress appropriate to the style of the gown."

BANKER SEES BETTER TIMES AHEAD

DECLARES BANKERS CONTROL RECOVERY BECAUSE OF CREDIT

Attacks Taxes, Trust
Law; Election Wed-

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30.—Although branding the Sherman anti-trust law as out-of-date, and mounting taxation as a formidable restraint to business, John G. Lonsdale of St. Louis, president of the American Bankers' Association, today urged conservatism in the pursuance of legislative enactments affecting banking at the opening general session of the fifty-sixth annual convention of the association here.

The great stabilizing power in the economic landscape of commerce and industry during the past year of stress, Lonsdale asserted, has been the American banking system, and "before there is set by law a course that years may be required to change, we should be able to see the way ahead more clearly than is now possible."

"There are signs that business is turning upward," he said. "September has brought considerable increase in credit operations. The public is opening its purse for purchases, additional employees have been placed in many factories, national savings are continuing to grow, and the wheels of trade and industry are picking up speed."

"The rapidity of recovery is, to some extent, in the hands of the bankers who control the flow of credit. The full force of our current recession has been greatly mitigated through the careful scrutiny of credit and the insistence upon skillful management imposed on our business structure through banking operations."

One of the formidable restraints to business progress, Lonsdale said, is mounting taxation. All taxes are too high, he declared, and there is a growing belief that the tax systems do not spread the cost equitably.

Questioning whether the Sherman anti-trust law does not in its present form stifle initiative in business and place a handicap on

WORLD SERIES BROADCAST

Gazette Invites Fans To Hear Series Games On
Huge Radio Amplifying System

WILL the St. Louis Cardinals, champions of the National League or the Philadelphia Athletics, American League pennant holders, win the world's baseball championship?

Lots of people would like to know the answer, but the only real solution is the outcome of the annual world series games, biggest sport feature in America, which will start in Philadelphia Wednesday and continue until a winner has been declared.

Thousands of raving fans will be on hand in Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Wednesday, when the series opens, and thousands more will be grouped about radios in all parts of the land, listening to the play-by-play description of the games to be broadcast over the National Broadcasting Co., chain by the king of radio announcers, Graham McNamee.

Permission to broadcast the series has been given by Judge K. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball. Both stations WEA and WJZ will be the national outlets for the huge broadcast, and THE GAZETTE, following an annual and highly popular custom, will be on hand to receive this broadcast and deliver it to downtown baseball fans through its new Public Address System.

On this occasion, THE GAZETTE'S new Public Address System, a powerful equipment for the broadcasting of public, outdoor events, will be used for the first time for the baseball broadcast. Purchased this summer, the Public Address System was used to give election returns here primary night, and was also used at the Greene County Fair and at a number of other county fairs in this section of Ohio. Popular acclaim has followed the instrument everywhere.

Four huge auditorium type loudspeakers, powered by seventeen tubes of amplification, give this equipment clarity of tone and long-range carriage, and make it by all odds the finest equipment ever used in Xenia. The games are scheduled to start at 1:30 p. m. in Philadelphia and 2:30 when played in St. Louis and the broadcast will be on the air every afternoon.

Insofar as edition schedules permit, the play-by-play description of the world series games will be published in THE GAZETTE.

James L. Kilgallen, who has closely followed the games in both major leagues and who visited the spring training camps last spring, will direct the International News Service series coverage for THE GAZETTE, which will include articles by Kilgallen, Bill Corum's daily column, Ford Frick's comment and baseball stories by Homer Metz and Robert Hereford.

(Special to Gazette)

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 30.—Intense sensational developments are expected to follow swiftly in the wake of the mysterious theft of the great mogul diamond, which Blm Gump presented to Henrietta Zander at a banquet when their plans to wed on October 1, were announced.

The best detective talent in this and other countries has been enlisted to solve the baffling mystery. Blm Gump, on the verge of distraction over the loss, has ordered that no expense be spared in the search and has offered enormous rewards for recovery of the priceless gem, the finest in the world and which, with its necklace of the purest diamonds, runs into a value that is staggering.

Messages have been pouring in from all over the world suggesting theories as to the master mind back of the amazing theft. A majority of the senders express the opinion that "Scarface Al" Capone, whose criminal ramifications extend in all directions, engineered the robbery, but it is pointed out that the crime was more subtle in execution than the usual Capone method.

It is recalled that after displaying the mogul and necklace on the beautiful throat of Mrs. Zander, Mr. Gump took charge of it, placed it in a small steel safe which he placed in his room at the home of his brother, Andy Gump. The safe was placed on a table near a window, which was securely bolted, with ventilation space of about three inches at the top. All the doors, including the closet door, were locked and bolted and the one leading to the hall was barricaded. Blm Gump was the only occupant of the room and was armed with a shot gun. While he slept the safe and its tremendously valuable contents was stolen but in what manner the best detective minds are unable to venture even a guess.

The solitary clew, a tenuous one at best, were footprints in the soft earth on the lawn, eighteen feet below the window. These footprints were of a one-legged man but there are no marks of a crutch or cane or other support. Nor are there any marks of a ladder being raised to the window.

Owing to the immense size of the mogul, it will be impossible for the thieves to dispose of it, as it is known all over the world, unless they cut it into smaller gems. It is the general belief that the robbers will soon open negotiations with Mr. Gump for its "ransom."

There is wide speculation as to the effect the theft will have upon the impending marriage of Mr. Gump and Miss Zander. There are sinister hints that in his investigation of the robbery Mr. Gump may come across disturbing knowledge that may postpone, if indeed it does not cancel, his marriage plans.

GAZETTE SERIES GUESTS WILL HEAR M'NAMEE ANNOUNCING

The World Series will be broadcast again this year by the National Broadcasting Company with Graham McNamee, veteran announcer, at the microphone. It was announced today just after Judge K. M. Landis, czar of organized baseball, gave final permission.

The World's Series broadcast will go over an NBC coast-to-coast network.

The opening game of the series will be held at Shibe Field, Philadelphia, Wednesday, beginning at 1:30 o'clock Xenia time. The tentative schedule calls for the playing of the first two games at Philadelphia and the next three games at the home field of the St. Louis Cardinals. Then, if neither team has won the necessary four games, the play will be resumed at Philadelphia.

McNamee's appearance before the microphone will mark his seventh year as announcer of World Series games. He made radio's first world series broadcast in 1923, and since that time has announced thirty-eight world series games.

Earl Of Birkenhead Dies After Important Career

EARL OF BIRKENHEAD

Schoolboy Aviator Is Impeded By Wind, Fog
On Mountains

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 30.—Robert Buck, 16-year-old schoolboy aviator, attempting to establish a new transcontinental flight record for boys under 21 years of age, hopped off from Stout Field, Mars Hill airport here at 7:50 a. m. Buck headed west with the hope that he would not land until he arrives at Albuquerque, N. M.

"But if I get to Albuquerque while it is daylight, I'll go on," he said.

The youth, who took off in his father's Pitcairn sport mail wing airplane from Albany, N. Y., at 7 a. m. yesterday, fought winds and fog in surmounting the Allegheny Mountains. He used so much gasoline that he was compelled to make a landing at Martins Ferry, O. Another landing at Columbus, O., followed and after descending at Stout Field at 4:20 p. m. he spent the night in Indianapolis.

The lad was nearly as uncomfortable with newspapermen as Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, but it was because he was too sleepy, to talk last night, he said.

RUM RUNNERS FLEE BUT LEAVE LIQUOR

NEW PORT, R. I., Sept. 30.—Driving their three automobiles at terrific speed through a rain of between seventy-five and 100 shots from the pistols of a group of coastguardsmen, a party of liquor smugglers today escaped, leaving behind on Newport Beach, $25,000 worth of imported liquor, three automobile trucks and two dories. Other members of the smuggling group of thirteen escaped off shore in two powerboats.

Four coastguardsmen under Captain Ellsworth Latham of the Breton Point station, had used an automobile in scouting the rum runners during the night instead of coastguard patrol boats.

The name, "Anthony Carbone," written on a small piece of paper, was found in a pocket of the man's clothing. An address which was not discernible was written below the name.

The mutilated body, hacked with a knife and beaten by an iron pipe which was lying nearby, was discovered by George Cleary, of Dennison.

Both ears were cut off, the back of the head was crushed and the face was gouged horribly. The hands were deeply cut and mangled, indicating, according to Coroner Lewis, that the man had grappled with his attacker who was wielding the knife.

Robbery was eliminated as the motive for the slaying when more than $15 was found in one of the pockets of the shabby clothing.

AMERICAN WOMAN ENDS LIFE AT NICE

NICE, France, Sept. 30.—The body of Mrs. John Hove, the former Marguerite Wilson, of Philadelphia, was found today in the gas-filled kitchen of her apartment here.

Police believed the case a suicide. They found a note with the message: "Tired of husband's morals. Mrs. Hove was 40 years old.

LAND OFFICE CHIEF MAY OFFER CHARGES BEFORE COMMITTEE

Senators Say Claims
Should Be Probed To
"Clean House"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—A senate investigation to determine if the ghost of the gigantic oil scandals which smeared the administration of President Harding has reappeared moved a notch nearer a reality today.

Ralph S. Kelley, chief of the general land office in Denver, Colo., for the last quarter of a century, whose resignation following his public charge the interior department played favoritism in awarding valuable oil shale land leases on public lands in the west was refused by Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, has announced he will amplify his charges before a senate investigating committee. Meanwhile he has been suspended.

Wilbur, too, declared he welcomed an investigation and has directed his subordinates to compile a report of all transactions relative to the oil lands in the public domain made since he assumed office.

The consensus of the senators now in Washington is that the charges made by Kelley are of such magnitude that the senate should conduct a thorough investigation and absolve the Hoover administration, if the allegations are false, or clean house of those officials who have failed to carry out their duties to the letter of the law.

Senator Nye (R) N. D., chairman of the senate public lands committee, said Kelley is a highly respected governmental official and it is "extraordinary that he should resign from the government service after twenty-five years unless he felt he was doing the right thing."

Nye said Kelley must be given a hearing.

Another senator, Brookhart (R) Iowa, said an investigation into every charge preferred by Kelley in his letter of resignation to Wilbur should be investigated to see if they are based on facts.

"The American people are entitled to have their public domain and natural resources administered for the public good and the public benefit instead of being sloughed away and exploited for the benefit of a few," he said.

"We felt that the Elk Hills and Teapot Dome scandals had ended that sort of administration of the oil reserves."

"Indeed the darkest spot of our history is the despoiling of our natural resources. There must be an investigation of these charges. If they are untrue the administration should be absolved, otherwise we must clean house again."

Senator Tydings (D) Maryland, sees the possibility of the promulgation of a new national oil policy if Kelley's accusations are adjudged correct. He said the matter is "too serious to discuss further until we have all the facts."

Wilbur said he refused to accept Kelley's resignation because of the seriousness of his allegations and suspended him pending a departmental inquiry. He defended his department's administration of the oil lands and remarked Kelley was instructed on last July 7 to come here and take charge of the work he now attacks but was not yet reported to him.

Kelley appeared here in August and worked about a month during Wilbur's inspection of the Boulder Canyon dam site, the secretary's statement said.

Not a single lease for oil shale lands has been issued by the interior department since he took office, Wilbur declared.

A majority of the claims on such lands not invalidated by the general leasing act of 1920 are held, he said, in the names of individuals or associations of individuals comprised mainly of residents of the local community, he added.

"Whether so-called large oil companies purchased these claims after patent is a matter over which the department has no jurisdiction or control."

He also said the administration's oil conservation policy does not affect claims made under the old mineral leasing act and such claims were left intact as long as they complied with the old law.

Kelley alleged in his letter that the department during the last six years has awarded to powerful oil interests billions of dollars worth of oil lands in Colorado to which, he said, they are not entitled.

CENSORS LIFT BAN ON "BIG HOUSE"

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 30.—"The Big House," the talking picture production on prison life, will be shown in Ohio. The state board of film censors, which twice banned the showing of the picture in theaters in the state, reconsidered its action late yesterday and approved it. The board announced more than a week ago that the picture had been banned because it would be "harmful to the boys and girls."

The previous action of the board was lifted due to the apparent state-wide demand for the picture, it was announced. The film portrays life in an overcrowded state prison and features riots, "strong-arm" methods and other conditions which are said to exist in penal institutions.

LIKE SERIALS? TRY OURS

DID it ever occur to you how much more satisfactory it is to read serial stories in a newspaper than in a magazine? The newspaper serial offers you an installment daily, not too long but what it can read without interfering with other duties or pleasures, but generous enough to keep the thread of the story running brightly.

The monthly magazines require five or six issues to publish a story of similar length, with the customary month's wait between issues so that the reader loses the thread of the story in forgetfulness. The weekly magazines publish briefer installments than the monthly publications and spread the story out almost as long.

If you like fascinating mystery serials, begin reading "IT WAS LOCKED" by John Hawk in THE GAZETTE this week. It will be served to you in daily installments so that it is not difficult to carry the plot in mind from day to day.

Star Gazing

By RADIE HARRIS

Central Press Staff Writer
Introducing a gentleman of
"Universal" importance — Lewis
Ayres.

Missed being a Christmas present by three days. Born Dec. 28, 1908, in Minneapolis, Minn.

Ran away from home to become a hobo. Saw Rudolph Valentino on the screen and decided to become an actor instead. Never told anybody about it for fear of being razed for thinking himself good-looking.

Was a freshman for five months at the University of Arizona.
Majoring in "music," playing in the college orchestra. Was taught piano by his grandmother, who is 75 years old and is still teaching.

Thought that the height of his ambition would be attained if he ever had enough money for a banjo. Is now concentrating on a pipe organ.

Organized Band.

Organized a six-piece college band and barnstormed all through Mexico. Drifted into Los Angeles and played at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel and Plantation Club.

Hung around casting offices for three months. Couldn't even get job as extra. As soon as he "clipped" every casting agent in Hollywood asked him where he had been hiding.

First actor he ever met was Douglas Fairbanks. Lunched with him and didn't open his mouth during the entire meal. Claims he would be equally as "dumb" if he met him now.

Attended his first and last tea dance in the Blossom Room of the Hotel Roosevelt. After one drink of orange pekoe gathered up enough courage to ask Lily Dam-ita to dance with him. After one look at him, Lily answered "Mais, oui!"

Hollywood Days
Was "spotted" on the dance floor by Ivan Kahn, discoverer of Alice White and Sally O'Neil. And asked if he wanted to go into pictures. (Ed. note: This is NOT a Ripley, "Believe it or Not.")

Played a "bit" in "The Sophomore" for Pathe and was then recommended by Paul Bern, whom he had met but once, for the juvenile lead opposite Greta Garbo in "The Kiss."

Was casually introduced to Miss Garbo on the set and then given the big love scene to play with her.
Vows it was the easiest and hardest assignment he has ever had.

Asked Garbo for her autographed picture five times during the making of the picture. Has the picture but the autograph is still conspicuous by its absence.

Was out of a job for four months after "The Kiss." Finally, along with the rest of the male population of Hollywood, took a test for "All Quiet on the Western Front."

Expected to get one of the "boys" parts, but never dreamed it would be "Paul." Had to sign a five-year contract before he was given the role. Is now being rented to other companies at triple his salary.

Wore nothing but soldier's uniform for fourteen weeks during making of "All Quiet." Felt as if he were on furlough when he got into "civvies" again. Gets more upset than anyone else in an audience at harrowing war scenes.

His Likes
Likes classical music, astronomy, Russia, his "Hupmobile," sophisticated women and airdales.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The senior class held a "brown bag" sale at the close of the activity period last Thursday and did a rushing business. Another special sale will be held by the senior class on October 9 at the same hour. The class is busy at present trying to decide about the school annual and making preparations for the Halloween Carnival to be held in the high school building the night of October 24. Members of the senior and junior classes attended the night football game at Dayton last Friday night as guests of the University of Dayton. Those who attended had a rather cool evening but nevertheless enjoyed the night contest.

The glee club is practicing daily making ready for the annual operetta of the senior high school that will be given in the school auditorium on the nights of November
6 and 7 under the direction of Wm.
Hugh Miller. "The Lass of Limerick Town" is an interesting and entertaining drama that can be well presented with a large cast.
Miss Olive Allen, English teacher, will coach the cast and Miss Paye Cavanaugh, of the bookkeeping department, will coach the dances.
Mr. Kennedy will be in charge of the scenery and Miss Hanna the costumes.

Quite a number of the high school students attended the Wittenberg vs. Georgetown football game at Springfield last Friday night as guests of Wittenberg College.

The high school band is all pepped up over the fact that it is going to have bright, shiny uniforms this year and is practicing every day in order to make a fine appearance at the first home game a week from Saturday. Xenia will be trying to celebrate two victories that day in football and band. We hope they succeed in both cases.

The Hi-Y Club held a special luncheon Monday noon, September 29 and a large group attended the first affair of this kind this year.
Earl Rhoades, head of Dayton and Montgomery County Hi-Y Clubs, was guest speaker for the occasion.

The first meeting of the agriculture club was held September 17 in the school building. There was no business of vital importance and so the meeting was adjourned within a short time, after its calling. The president, Loren Harner, appointed committees to make arrangements for refreshments and initiation for the next meeting on October 15. New members will be admitted at this meeting from the freshmen and sophomore classes.

A special assembly was held last Thursday at which time cheer leaders, for the present year were chosen by the student body. Those who desired to become cheer leaders were given a chance to lead in a cheer and then the students voted on those as they wished them to rank in ability to lead cheers.

Nine students were tried out and William Wait and Richard Adair were chosen as the two best cheer leaders.

Those who are interested in debate are working daily under the direction of Mr. Shumaker, coach of the team, and are becoming more acquainted in the art of debating. The subject for debate this year is as follows: Resolved—that the principle of the chain store is detrimental to the best interests of the community.

The last edition of the Central High Review was published last Friday. It was decided to do away with the school paper as there was not enough interest to keep it going without going into debt by a large margin. Different classes may, however, edit special editions at their own cost during the year.

Arrangements are being made to form a junior senior French club in Central this year. Miss Jones, teacher in French, will be the club advisor. Meetings will probably be held at different home of the members of the club.

"Patient research—that nearly every great scientific achievement, and the more public spirited the enterprise the more careful it is to insure successful results. Anyone who reads about your modern use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the LUCKY to recognize the long, patient research and experiment that must have preceded it. I regard your development as an accomplishment wrought

Tickets for Friday evening's dance may be obtained at Geyer's or from any member of the Forty and Eight Society. The public is being extended a cordial invitation to attend "L'Automne Dansante."

Those present at the meeting Monday evening were: E. J. Carmony, president of Tecumseh Council, who complimented the local committee on having such a large attendance present at the meeting; S. N. The Rev. Adrian G. Lebold gave a report on the Kingsbury award. This contest has been in progress this summer among Greene County troops and will be brought to a close October 4. ACCUSED CONSTABLES FURNISH BOND BUT FACE OTHER CHARGES

Although bond was furnished Monday for their appearance before Mayor D. H. Fittz, at Yellow Springs Thursday morning at 10 o'clock to answer charges of impersonating officers, Herman Risner and Harold Wallace, former Montgomery County constables, who have been working out of the court of John T. Hornaday, colored, Miami Twp., justice of the peace, were still being held in the county jail here Tuesday pending the possibility of other charges, the nature of which authorities would not divulge, might be filed against them later in the day.

Bond of $1,000 each was furnished in their behalf by Herbert Mershon, professional bondsman of Dayton. The alleged "special constables" of Squire Hornaday have been held in jail since their arrest last Friday night in the magistrate's court room.

Arraigned before Mayor Fittz Saturday on charges of impersonating officers, they pleaded not guilty and their hearings were assigned for Thursday morning this week.

The arrests were made as a result of information unearthed by officials of the Greene and Montgomery County Auto Clubs and by Harry Jackson, marshal of Yellow Springs. Jackson swore out the affidavits against the men which were prepared by Attorney J. A. Finney, this city, representing the local auto club.

It is claimed the two men, who are under indictment in Montgomery County, were implicated in an extortion scheme carried out with Squire Hornaday's assistance in which a number of motorists from

WATCH AND PRAY—Watch therefore; for we know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh.—Matt. 25:13.

NARROW ESCAPES

People often return from some automobile trip, and boast of narrow escapes they have had from accidents. If they had not shown unusual quickness and skill in some bad situation, they boast, they would have been smashed up by some reckless driver.

In most cases of such narrow escapes, however, both parties were somewhat to blame. Probably the one who boasted of the narrow escape, had himself taken a bit of a chance, or had allowed his attention to wander for a minute.

If people wish to be sure of avoiding automobile accidents, they must so drive their cars that accidents would be nearly impossible. This is not so difficult as it sounds, only it does call for self control.

It may call for a driver to wait for a whole minute at some intersection until there is a good clear chance to cross, while if he attempts to slip in before, he may take a bit of a chance that he has missed his calculations. If people had the right spirit of patience, the good natured willingness to wait their turn and keep cool and comfortable, they would find that their chances of a mishap were greatly reduced.

If people come home with the recollection of having had some narrow escape, the chances are that their driving habits are at fault, and should be corrected. They would better review the circumstances of such incidents, and ask themselves what they gained by the little error of operation that they made, and they should resolve to show more caution in that respect in the future.

The loss of a minute of time is not a serious thing. It is not as if one's house were burning down, or someone was drowning in the near by river and help must come instantly. Our people should acquire a greater sense of proportion, and conclude that it never pays to save time by taking chances.

WHAT'S THE REASON

The French novelists who are talking loudly about fighting "infernal personality mongering" by hereafter issuing their books anonymously, doubtless have their reasons for the agitation they have started. Some of them may feel they are slipping, and that books sent out minus their signatures will sell better for the omission. Some of them may be attracted by what looks like a good advertising scheme in the form of a big guessing contest which the members of the public will hasten to enter, the result being a fine sale of books. But of one thing we may feel sure. The resort to anonymity is not caused by modesty, nor where French writers are concerned.

From the way the Chinese keep on fighting among themselves and killing one another, a person might almost suspect that they are trying to emulate the habits of Christian Europe.

The New York Times notes that according to the cyclopedia the climate of Nebraska is "dry and exhilarating." Have they invented some sort of non-liquid alcohol out there?

Doubtless the meek will inherit the earth in due time, but at present it looks as though they are going to wait a long time before getting possession of their patrimony.

Maybe the individual who said that the average American takes 15,000 steps a day was thinking of car mileage.

"Who is progressive?" asks the Milwaukee Journal. Generally the person agreeing with the man using the word.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

BOREDOM AND ENVY

The scramble for great wealth comes from the boredom of the rich and the envy of the poor. If the poor knew how unhappy most of the rich are they would not be so envious. Poverty comes because we are not sufficiently civilized to know how to adjust production and consumption. Over-production comes through stupidity. After ten times as many years on the earth as our little histories record, man is still too stupid to know how to take care of himself. Another twenty thousand years and we may have wiped out ignorance. A few thousand years after that we may have solved the problem of preventing poverty.

LEARNING SOMETHING

Ask a young graduate about something he ought to know and he says he can't tell you, because he didn't study that in school. It would be a sad little education you could confine it to the few years of school. If you aren't interested in a life-long habit of self-education, you aren't really interested in education at all.

COMPANIONABLE

Addison H. Day rides back and forth between New York and Chattanooga, N. J., on the train. So do others. The difference is that Mr. Day has been doing it 61 years—ever since the trains were lighted by coal oil lamps and heated with wood stoves. And he proves all change for new things is not better than the old way when he says that travel nowadays is more comfortable, but less companionable. Today people think they haven't time to be companionable. Of course they have time, except they don't know how to use it.

TIME

Speaking of time, we all have the same amount and there is a lot of it. A few know how to manage time. Most do not. The man who is always rushed is not always the busy one. He is just the one who isn't smart enough to manage time.

Says Dr. Truxal, sociology professor in Dartmouth: "The great temptation is to fall into a common standard. We want to be like everyone else. Be yourself. Be content when your own individuality is expressed. In a world where everything is standardized, where everyone fits a common pattern, the greatest need is for us to be ourselves."

This is a stimulating idea—sound but dangerous. No greater satisfaction can come in life than self-expression. To be oneself, to have an outstanding personality, to feel free, to fit into no common rut—it is all splendid. But to go ahead on that policy let us first be sure we have sense—and sense of duty.

THE QUESTION BOX

Central Press Wash. Bureau

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

What is the value of a copy of a New York newspaper 130 years old and which carries the story of Washington's death? No definite value could be set on such a copy. If it is one of a few such copies extant it might be submitted to the Congressional Library at Washington for appraisal and possible purchase, or to a museum.

Aviation

Are there any free aviation schools, government or otherwise, in the United States? No, there are no free aviation schools except those of the United States army which are open only to army men. List of aviation schools may be obtained from the aviation departments of the New York Sunday newspapers or if you wish, write to the Department of Commerce, Bureau of Aeronautics, for list of accredited schools.

Forestry

Can you tell me where there is a forestry school, and how much would the expense be to attend one? Most of the state universities maintain schools of forestry. The minimum cost of attending such a school would be between $600 and $700 annually. A degree can be obtained in four years.

Citizenship

Does the United States government force any person to become a citizen and when a person does not become a citizen, does the government take the liberty of sending him back to his native land, confiscating his property? The United States government does not force any person to become a citizen. The matter is optional. Nor is an alien deported and his property confiscated without sufficient reason. The justice department determines, in the last analysis, whether or not there is sufficient reason for deporting any individual.

Birth Certificate
What is the difference between a baptismal certificate and a birth certificate?

A baptismal certificate is given by the church in which the infant is baptized, a religious rite, while a birth certificate is a public record required by local governments in the keeping of vital statistics. A birth certificate can be obtained by making application to the city clerk of the city in which the infant was born.

(NOTE: The following pamphlets may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin and a large stamped self-addressed envelope for each, to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 128, Washington, D. C.: "Who's Who in Hollywood," "Swimming," "Seeing Washington," Charles P. Stewart's treatise on "Our Government," and "The World War.")

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—Some day the movie magnates may overcome their wild desire to spend money. But that time seems far distant. An evidence of their lavishness may be seen in the matter of announcing a new production.

The announcements for a Broadway play seldom exceed $3,500. More often the amount is nearer $2,000. This sum includes newspaper advertising, lobby displays, photographs, mimeographs, knick-knacks and electric signs. It cost Jed Harris, for instance, $6,000 to raise the curtain on "Uncle Vanya."

"Hell's Angels," the latest Broadway movie "knockout," announced itself to The Lane for the trifling sum of $142,000—not counting the salary of Charlie Washburn, publicity director.

THOSE WERE THE DAYS

The parties of a large downtown wire house, while waiting round in the hope that a customer might drop in and place an order, read with some amusement the copy of a New York morning newspaper dated May, 1897.

A feature story in thirty-three-year-old paper entitled, "Starvation Days in Wall Street," painted a picture of the dull business then ruling in the financial center. It pointed out that Stock Exchange seats cost $18,000 and that to justify such a large investment a member must make at least $900 a year in commissions, figuring at 5 per cent. "At the present rate of business this cannot be done," the article said.

LOST OR DISCARDED

One of the large mid-town hotels set its statistician to work the other day compiling figures on articles lost and found in the inn.

Old Charts-and-Checks found that one out of every 40 guests leaves some personal belonging behind when he checks out. More than 10,000 articles—everything from false teeth to nursing bottles have been left in rooms by the 475,000 guests who have been accommodated at the caravanserie since its opening nine months ago.

WASHINGTON—Now that the nominations all have been made, one fact stands out in bold relief: Every Republican candidate, who was fought for having opposed White House policies, won a place on the G. O. P. ticket. Without a single exception, wherever the "regulars" tried to beat an "insurgent" the latter triumphed. To be sure, some of them may be defeated in November, but if so, it will be by Democrats.

The series of "stand pat" reverses wound up with the worst one of all in Wisconsin, where the governorship was at stake. The others were senatorial contests. Alphabetically Idaho heads the list. Although Senator Borah was a most effective Hoover presidential campaigner in 1928 and still calls himself a regular, he has done his best in congress against every important administration policy since the present White House tenant's inauguration. Idaho Republicans renominated him almost unanimously.

Representative L. J. Dickinson, the Iowa G. O. P.'s senatorial choice, certainly is a regular, though quite a liberal one. However, Gov. John Hammill, whom Dickinson beat for the nomination, professed to be a better regular than the latter. Moreover, Dickinson had the support of Senator Smith W. Brookhart, perhaps the most vehement insurgent who comes to Washington. Brookhart, at any rate, claims Dickinson's victory as a victory for himself.

In Michigan ex-Gov. Chase S. Osborn fiercely attacked Senator James Couzens for failing the president in every legislative emergency—and Couzens was renominated by a wide margin. Senator Schall of Minnesota has not always voted with the progressives, but he has done so often enough to irritate the regulars besides into denying him a voice in the selection of federal appointees in the Gopher State; pretty drastic treatment, considering that he is the only Republican senator from that ballad—his colleague, Senator Shipstead, being a Farmer-Laborite.

The two dazzling lithographs of the Messiah and Mussolini. I was curious as to the nature of the sign. He translated it for me: "It's a says here," he bang. "My dear frens. This is-a my place where I make-a de mon." It is quite a small. When you all-a come an' sit for hours an' more, my client stay away because-a no room. They spend-a mon', so please, you will stay away—kindly, as I am American business man. My dear frens, I-a salute you."

OBSESSIBILITIES. Imagine the celebration that will have to be squandered, let us say on a Chaplin film—the scent that will have to be wafted across the theatre when the Inimitable Charlie stoops to pick up a quarter and ends by grinning and wiping his wet fingers on his baggy pants!

You can see the subtleties afforded by the innovation. You can also imagine the leeway the thing affords a theatre man with a naturally mean disposition. But it may be that when the idea is perfected it will be found to be "skunk proof."

The regulars gave Schall a hot race for renomination, too—but he won.

It is no news that "regularity" put every ounce of strength it could muster into an effort to prevent Senator George W. Norris' renomination in Nebraska—equally is it no news that he was renominated in a walk.

Senator Pine's case of "insurgency" was unusually aggravated. The Oklahoma man was not originally progressive. He was quite regular. But somehow he appeared to take a violent personal dislike to the Hoover administration and turned insurgent, seemingly deliberately and maliciously. The regulars strove assiduously to checkmate his renomination, but he won it almost without effort.

With Senators Norris, La Follette and Blaine, Senator McMaster of South Dakota has been one of the four most irreconcilable progressives in Washington throughout the term. The stand-patters fought him wellnigh to a draw, trying to keep his name off the G. O. P. ticket this fall—but, by a tight squeak, he got it on.

The Wisconsin result, involving no senate seat this year, does not immediately affect the Washington situation in a material sense, but its psychological significance here is enormous. The Badge State campaign was waged perhaps most exclusively on the issue of the national administration's policies than any other in the country.

If there was any doubt concerning its outcome, at least none was entertained at the headquarters of the beaten regular candidate for renomination, with the succinct statement attributing defeat to too heavy a burden of carrying Hoover.

Of course here are plenty of states where the G. O. P. nominations (and the Democratic nominations also, for that matter) are as regular as orthodox could desire.

That is to say, where insurgency was not in the race it scored no victories. Where it was represented, however, that was all it did score. Regularity probably doesn't like it, but it will have hard work getting away from the record.

Here are two luncheon menus that would serve either for family consumption or for guests. Each will serve six people.

Today's Recipes

Tuna Salad—One and one-half cups diced celery, one and one-half cups flaked tuna, two hard cooked eggs, diced; one-fourth cup chopped sweet pickles, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-eighth cup salad dressing, six sliced pimiento stuffed olives. Mix the celery, tuna, eggs, pickles, salt, paprika and dressing. Chill. Serve in cups of crisp lettuce leaves and top with the olives.

Raw Vegetable Salad—Cucumber, beet, carrot, tomato, cabbage, green pepper, lettuce, mayonnaise. In the center of each individual plate place a large slice of tomato and sprinkle with bits of green pepper. Around it arrange small lettuce leaves. In one leaf place two tablespoons mayonnaise, and in each of the other places the various vegetables—the raw beet and carrot cut in tiny strips, the cabbage grated and the cucumber sliced thin. All the vegetables should be chilled before serving.

Suggestions

Using an Old Thermos
Here is a way to utilize part of the old thermos bottle. When the glass receptacle in quart or pint thermos bottle becomes broken, the outer or metal part of thermos makes a very serviceable porch vase. Paint it to harmonize with porch furnishings and it will last indefinitely.

Radishes

Peel radishes, slice and boil in drain water, add milk, butter, salt, slightly salted water, when tender, and pepper to taste. Serve as a side dish. These may be eaten by persons who cannot eat them raw.

Remember to drain boiled potatoes the moment they are done, return the kettle to the burner, which is still hot, and leave uncovered to dry out.

Thin Person Should Take Rest

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The peculiar anatomy and physiology of thin people was discussed yesterday. We saw that the constitutionally thin person not only had a narrow external build, but that this went with certain arrangements of the internal organs. The lungs are large. The stomach and intestines hang low. In attempting to gain weight all these peculiarities must be taken into account. Simply giving them a rich, fattening diet will not do.

First, if you are one of these people, and want to gain weight, you must learn to rest. Since your muscles are not as strong as a normal person's, you cannot take as much exercise as he does. Your muscles are probably long, and the actual performance of any given action tires them more. Therefore, for you especially resting and relaxing is essential. You should always have at least eight to nine hours of sleep at night. Or if you don't sleep you should be in bed that long. Then a rest period—lying down on a couch—after lunch and dinners is imperative.

Secondly, you must help your stomach get rid of the food eaten. When you are standing erect the lowest part of your stomach is the food in it away below the outlet of the stomach to move the food up to that high point. But if you will lie down after every meal on a couch, on your right side, this will help the stomach empty.

Thus the rest period is good for the stomach and the muscles as well.

Thirdly, constipation is often a troublesome symptom with these people. However, a drastic cathartic is not to be recommended. It is too irritating. Petroleum (mineral oil) or psyllium seed or bran are all good forms of cathartics for you. If not those, a soap suds

enema two or three times a week. Or olive oil injected into the bowels on going to bed.

So far as the diet itself is concerned, it should have several things.

Fat and sugar, of course, are the best substances to put on weight. Fat may, however, cause indigestion. However, olive oil and butter in abundance usually will not. Nor will cream. Cream in the form of "half and half"—a glass of half milk and half cream to be drunk on going to bed, is an excellent idea.

Too much water, or fluid at one meal should be avoided. It is heavy and sags the stomach down. In the normal person water hardly stays in the stomach at all, but you thin people have such weak stomach walls that the water is likely to accumulate and sag the lower end of the stomach down. Bread is a good fattener, and a piece of meat once a day is highly desirable. The meat has a specific dynamic action, as it is called, and speeds up the processes of nutrition all along the line.

Instead of three large meals eat much better for you to have six small ones. The large ones will overload the stomach and make digestion slow and uncomfortable. But small meals will leave the stomach empty rapidly, and hence more completely digested, and hence more completely absorbed and utilized. The three extra meals should be spaced in the middle of the afternoon and before going to bed.

Ignore Hubby's Sulks, Virginia

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I read your column every day and am going to ask you for some advice. What would you do with a pouting husband? My husband and I have gotten along fine until a year ago a woman came between us, and when I found out what was going on, set my foot down. It almost broke my heart, and our home has never been the same, for he takes spells. Pouts for days and nights at a time, and acts like he hasn't any love or feeling for me. Then he gets over it, like a little, and seems to be as loving as ever.

"I just have to be good to him, and I love him better than life, but wonder if I should treat him as he does me if it would break him of this? I mean to pout at him, for this is all the way he ever mistreats me. He never grows at anything I do, and provides well, but I would give anything to break these pouting spells. "PATSY."

You think maybe if you took to acting like a big baby too it might cure him, eh? I don't believe it would work, Patsy. I think ignoring him and acting as if everything was as usual would be more effective. If when he comes home in pouting mood you either have some friends in or go out with some women friends and act as cheerful as usual he may snap out of it in time.

Part of his sulking may be caused by his conscience troubling him, and part by a feeling of hurt pride that you "put your foot down" so effectively. He's been spanked and resents it. Let us hope, for your sake, he'll outgrow his pouting spells. If he doesn't it may be necessary for you to put the other foot down with equal force.

"MY DEAR VIRGINIA: I met a girl two years ago and fell deeply in love with her and have gone so far as to be engaged and set the date of the wedding, but her mother has changed the girl's mind. "Now I have enough money and I love her dearly. Not only that, but the girl is 22 years old and I 25.

Well, why not aim up, dear? It can be done by dieting and exercise things in sufficient quantities to keep your health? You'd feel better, I know. Of course, being so tall you can stand a good deal of weight without looking fat, and your frame may be large so you never that. Guy's girl rather contradicted the theory that fat people are good natured, didn't she? You confirm it.

It's a sad fact that there are some people—both fat and lean—that just don't attract members of the other sex. If you really are one of those people you must, for your own happiness, adopt what the physiologists call a "constructive compromise." Go into some kind of work or adopt some hobby that will fill your life with satisfaction and keep you from being lonely.

Treat Scalp Before Hair Grows

Despite the fact that long tresses of hair are definitely in vogue, one screen actress has adopted a short coiffure. She has discarded her long bob and wears her hair at a flapperish ear-length just at present.

Nevertheless, the majority of the younger women are allowing their hair to grow long. And many of them are just beginning to discover how distressingly thin their tresses are. The reason that they had not been aware of the condition before is that excessive shedding of hair isn't so noticeable if the hair is short. It's when the hairs are extremely long that the loss of a number of them shows up plainly and impresses us with the need of vigorous treatments to restore the scalp to health.

Those of you who intend to let your hair grow should have your scalp examined first by a physician or a scalp specialist. Then undergo whatever treatments are necessary before you start the growing.

It is much simpler to treat short hair than long hair. Massage is greatly simplified when the hair is short. Shampoos are much more easily done. Oil treatments or saline applications are not half as difficult to administer.

The wisest course is to get the hair and scalp into a beautiful, healthy condition before allowing the hair to grow. Your hair and scalp life will greatly retard the growth of your tresses.

If you have suffered from infections on the neck, due to the use of unsterilized clippers, or from ingrown hairs, due to the fineness of the hair and the tenderness of the skin at the nape of the neck, be sure these conditions are completely removed before you start to let your hair grow.

Bland Soap
Judy: A pure, gentle soap is excellent for use on the skin. Witch hazel will help to remove the excess oil from your skin, as it is a drying solution.

Reduce Bust
J. L. B.: My method of reducing the bust is too long to print in this brief space. However, the process is fully outlined in my booklet on "The New Figure."

B. L.: You may find the following bleach more effective than the one you have been using: Two ounces of rose water, one ounce of glycerine, and four ounces of lactic acid.

Cosmetics

J. L. B.: I think that a soft peach shade of powder, soft orange rouge and light lipstick would blend harmoniously with your coloring.

Who will be the pitchers in the opening game of the world's series?

In our opinion, which is worth no more than that of anyone else with the exception of Connie Mack and Gabby Street, Lefty Grove will be the starting hurler for the A's. Grove did not start a single game in the 1929 series, but he is a star hurler on the Athletics staff and is certain to see plenty of action against the Cardinals. It is only natural that he should receive the opening assignment although Mr. Mack is a tricky manager and may again surprise the boys like he did last year when he singled out Howie Ehmke to twirl the first game.

The starting pitcher for St. Louis is also problematical. The choice probably lies between "Wild Bill" Hallahan and Grimes. The experts are of the opinion that Grimes will be the pitching star of the series. We are inclined to the belief he may start the first game because the Athletics have a distinct preference for the southpaw brand of hurling.

Philadelphia reigns a 7 to 5 favorite to take the series but it will probably not be in four straight games.

More than any other style of attack, Knute Rockne's system of offense has caused football rule makers great concern.

To balance the offense and the defense is one of the duties of the rules committee. If innovations in offense threaten to overwhelm the defense, the rule makers have strengthened the defense. There have been occasions when the defense held the balance of power. Either situation detracts from the spectacle of the sport. There must be equality between the two.

Football's popularity with the masses probably dates from the adoption of the forward pass. The aerial game ended the regime of brute strength. No longer is physical power alone supreme for the player must temper his play with intelligence. Particularly is this true of the player on defense.

A fourth method of advancing the ball was introduced with the forward pass. The offense has a choice of plunging directly into the line, or perhaps at a slant in-line of the defensive tackle; running wide in an attempt to turn the end of the defensive line; kicking or passing.

Bill Baxley discloses that a tentative schedule which he has arranged for the proposed Lang Chevrolet Co. independent basketball team for the coming season includes seventeen games. Of this number nine contests will be played in Xenia at the National Guard Armory. Most of the home games are in the middle of the week, with perhaps one on Saturday if the Armory floor is available.

While listening in on a play-by-play description of the final baseball game between the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs over radio Sunday afternoon, Tom Hollen-camp heard a good one. Just after the Reds had scored nine runs in the second inning, a fan wired in to ask: "Who is managing the Cubs now?"

National League managers have discovered that one sure way of losing their jobs is to plot their teams to a league championship. Bill McKechnie won the pennant for the Pirates in 1925 and then got the air. He did the same thing for the Cardinals in 1928 and again was fired. In 1927 Donnie Bush had a similar experience after he had won the flag for Pittsburgh. After bringing the 1926 pennant to St. Louis, Rogers Hornsby went the way of the others. The latest victim is Joe McCarthy, who converted the Cubs from a last-place club into a pennant winner in four years. Now he has been given the gate in favor of Hornsby. Gabby Street, St. Louis manager this year, is the only exception. He led the Cards to another championship and has been given another contract. Wonder what his pull is with the magnates.

BUCS BUCK AGAINST BLOCKING MACHINE

Undaunted by the 37 to 0 wallop it received in its opening game of the season last Friday, Xenia Central High's grid squad bucked down to hard scrum practice Monday afternoon and commenced preparations for the game with Wilmington High at Wilmington Friday afternoon this week.

The first part of the afternoon's drill was devoted to a chalk talk, after which the Bucs, having emerged from the Washington C. H. struggle in good physical shape, all things considered, went through a stiff scrimmage session which lasted until 6:45 p. m.

Coach Wilson, the having a blocking machine constructed in the hope that this device will prove helpful to the players, enabling them to improve in this department of the pastime.

The Bucs have no alibi for the severe whipping last Friday. Scores of that size do not permit of much explanation except sheer superiority, but they intend to give a better account of themselves against their ancient Quaker foe Friday.

Mack Undecided On
Pitcher; Teams In
Good Spirits

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Sports
Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—Burling Grimes, the great "money pitcher" of the St. Louis Cardinals, today declared with a touch of truculence in his manner that he is going to hurl the opening game of the world series here tomorrow against the Philadelphia Athletics and, in the next breath, scornfully demanded to know "what all this secrecy is about—concerning whom the A's will pitch."

"I'm going to beat the A's," said Grimes with sublime confidence. "All we've got to do is to watch three players—Simmons, Fox and Cochrane. They have to watch nine. If I can't handle this team I'm ready for the old man's home."

Grimes was standing in the lobby of the downtown hotel at which the carefree and dashing red birds of St. Louis are quartered. They were "killing time" before leaving for Shibe Park where, at 1 o'clock this afternoon, they will indulge in a workout to familiarize themselves with the grounds.

Nearby sat Manager Gabby Street, opening telegrams and pulling away serenely at a black pipe. Lounging on a settee were Frankie Frisch, "Sunny Jim" Bottomley, Taylor Douthitt, Sparky Adams, Flint Rhem and other Cardinals. The players were industriously "punching the bag" with baseballs and the impending world series the sole topic of conversation.

The "secret practice" of the A's had come under discussion. It seems Connie Mack, the old fox of the dugouts, had put his club through a secret drill. Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, and Tris Speaker, the old outfield star, were among the few privileged onlookers.

Even the ticket sellers and ball park loungers were ousted while Manager Mack coached the twenty-four "A's" who are eligible to take part in the series. The drill it is understood, was held for the purpose of breaking in a new set of signals.

Manager Street had finished his telegrams and started to leave the lobby. As he passed, I asked him if he had definitely decided to start Grimes.

"Yes, he's elected," said Street. "I have five good starting pitchers but I think the situation favors Grimes."

Street was asked if he was worrying about any surprise move Connie Mack might make.

A smile mantled the creased countenance of Gabby as he smilingly replied: "Well, he can run his club his way. I'll run mine just as I have been."

"You know," added Street nonchalantly, "my club isn't worrying about anything. We're here in Philadelphia just to play a couple of ball games. That's all—just a couple of ball games."

As Street disappeared in the crowded lobby, Grimes remarked: "There's a great guy, Gabby Street. Do you know, he was my catcher when I was with Chattanooga in 1913. He's the best manager I ever played for."

Manager Mack of the A's, meanwhile, was maintaining the utmost secrecy regarding his pitching plans for the series. The experts are looking for Mack to start Shores, Rommel, Walberg, Quinn or some other unlooked for entry, holding his ace—Grove and Earshaw—in reserve. But the Athletics' leader may surprise everybody by doing the orthodox and using Grove.

"I want my boys to go into this series in the right mental condition," said Mack today. "I want them to go about their work quietly and efficiently and not get excited about this series. After all these are just ball games such as we have been playing every day all season."

"Waiting for the series to start is harder on the players' nerves than the actual games. Except for the youngsters I have a team which has been through one world series and this should help from a mental standpoint. Physically, the team is in great shape."

"I won't predict the outcome of the series. It should be a great battle for the Cards could not be anything but a remarkable team to come from behind as they did to win the National League pennant."

LOUISVILLE WINS
ROCHESTER, Sept. 30.—Rochester, champions of the International League, today were leading the Louisville Colonels by one game in the little world series.

The Colonels went on a rampage at Parkway Field yesterday, defeating the eastern team, 14 to 7, and making the count 3 to 2 in favor of the Rochester Red Wings.

SERIES ON AIR
NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Both the National and Columbia broadcasting systems will tell radio listeners the story of the world's series baseball games, starting tomorrow in Philadelphia.

Ford Frick, noted New York sports writer, will give the expert opinion on the National Broadcasting system.

The broadcast in Philadelphia tomorrow will start at 1 o'clock Eastern Standard time, while the St. Louis games will be broadcast at 2:15 Eastern Standard time.

Shortstop

By JACK SORDS
Central Press Sports Artist
The Cardinals appear to be stronger at shortstop than the Athletics. Compared with Joe Boley, the Athletics shortstop, Adams must be given the edge because of his better showing. However, Boley has had more experience than Gelbert, one of the youngsters in the Cardinal lineup. All three have been unable to hit with the consistency of Elwood English who might be used at short by the Cubs in the series if the Baby Bears had the luck to catch the flying Cardinals and beat them to the flag.

Farm Notes

DO CROPS "RUN OUT"?

Whether or not crops will "run out" depends upon what is meant by the term. According to G. H. Stringfield, associate in Agronomy at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, the term "running out" is commonly used to express a real or supposed permanent hereditary change which seriously lowers the productive capacity of the crop. Some crops, as in the case of potatoes, may accumulate disease infection with consequent appearance of a "running out" process. This, however, involves no hereditary change and if the crop could be made free of all disease it would grow again as vigorously as before.

Crops often become so foul with weed seed or so mixed with other crop seed as to lower markedly the quantity or quality of yield. An hereditary change may or may not occur in these cases, depending upon whether or not cross-fertilization takes place between the crop and its impurity. Natural cross-fertilization is in general less common than is usually supposed. For instance, pumpkins and watermelons, or cucumbers and muskmelons will not mix. Wheat will cross with rye occasionally but the progeny is usually sterile. Different varieties of the same crop will, however, often cross sufficiently to affect materially the seed value of both. The old belief that some small grain crops will now and then "run out" so completely that they turn to cheat, persists in places. If care is taken to eliminate all cheat seed no cheat will appear. It grows only from seed of its own kind.

Crops may pass through marked changes in becoming adapted to a new environment. This is particularly true with naturally cross-pollinated crops such as corn. The situation here is not one of "running out" but rather it is a process in which those plants best suited to the environment thrive best and produce the most seed for each succeeding generation.

Crops are often so nearly starved for want of plant food that they appear to have "run out" but with new seedling on fertile soil and with favorable climatic conditions this is rapidly overcome.

At the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, numerous cereal varieties have been grown year after year during more than a quarter of a century and none of them show evidence of any "running out" process.

DEMOCRATS START
CAMPAIGN IN OHIO
MARIETTA, O., Sept. 30.—With the declaration by George L. White, gubernatorial candidate, that the Democratic party is entering the political race with a determination to rescue our state government from the control of discredited politicians and restore it to the people of Ohio, the party's state campaign was in full swing today.

The movement was launched here last night at a gathering of Democratic candidates headed by White and Robert J. Bulkley, United States senatorial nominee. The two leaders gave addresses in which both predicted victory for their party in the November election.

White declared that while Bulkley and Democratic senators and representatives in Washington would be striving to remove the unnecessary tariff burdens, it would be his duty as governor to assist the general assembly in revising the laws relating to taxation in Ohio.

WEATHER IS FAIR

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—Fair and cool weather is in prospect for the first two games of the world series here tomorrow and Thursday. Top coats were in order today as the (virtually) clear skies and a chilly autumn wind prevailed for the practice sessions of the Cardinals and Athletics today.

HITLER, THE MAN OF THE HOUR

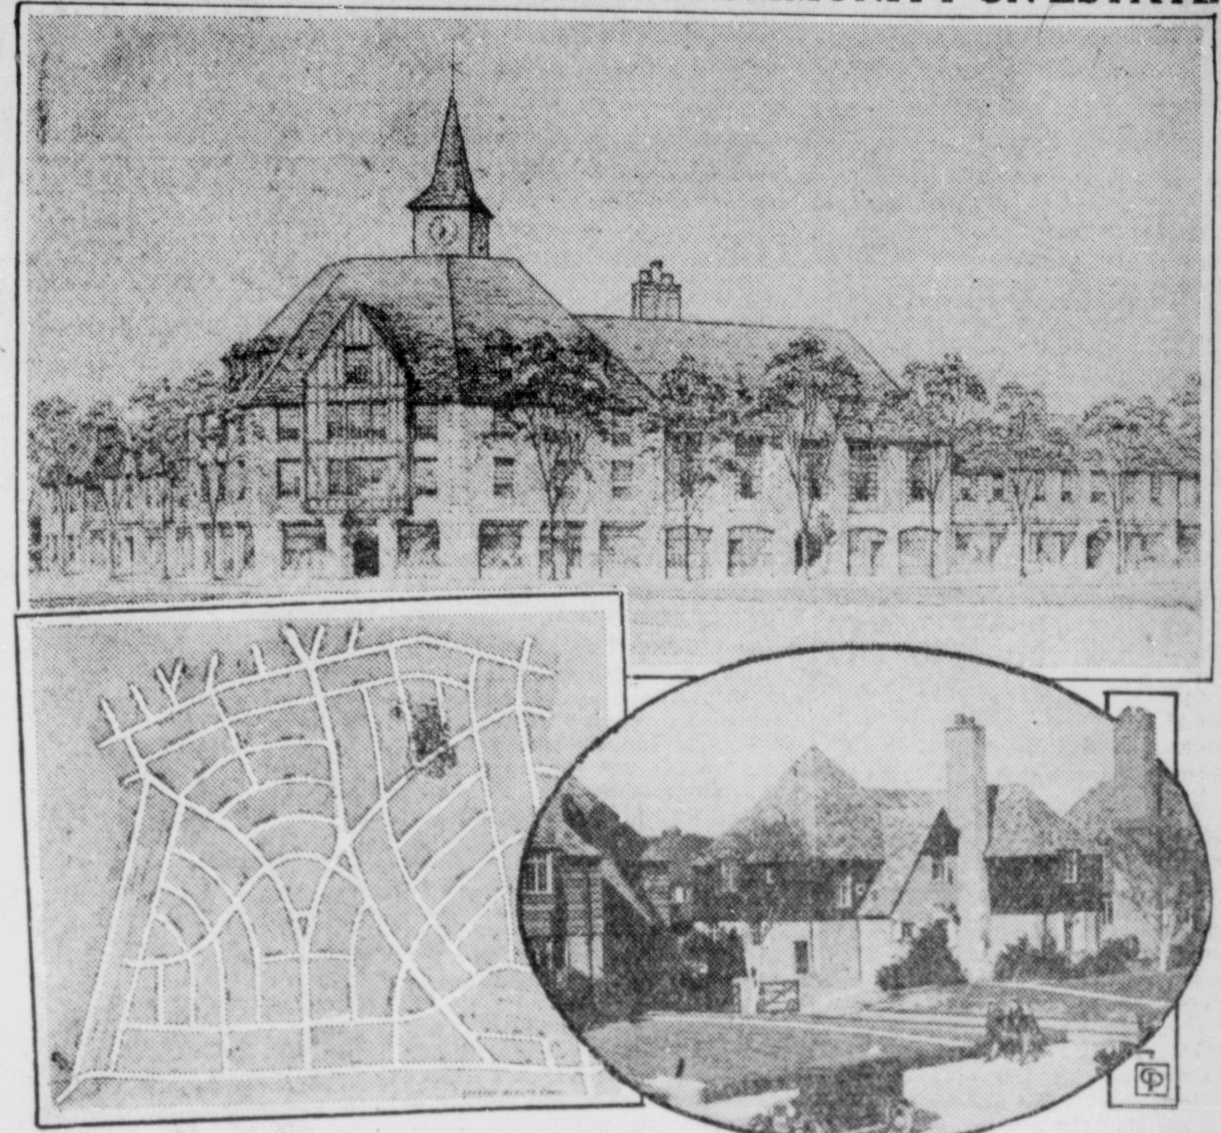

Adolf Hitler, Germany's new man of the hour, sketched above, by Artist R. J. Scott, has captured the imagination of the world, by his boldness in delivering a speech on Fascism from the witness stand of the German supreme court. Called before the court to testify at the trial of three young men charged with spreading Fascism, in the army, Hitler defended the movement of which he is the father, in Germany, declaring Fascism, through peaceful means, would eventually conquer the nation.

Cleveland is inspecting its first model community for the younger executive and professional class, the brain-child of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., which is rapidly taking shape. Eighty-one of the 1,000 homes planned for the development are practically completed. They are situated on the old Forest Hill estate of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., and many of the beautiful trees which surrounded the Rockefeller mansion have been used in landscaping. All of the homes are English style and an office building is being erected, designed to conform to the same type of architecture. Above, a group of finished homes, architect's drawing of the office building, in the style of an old English inn, and a diagram of the entire project. Approximately $2,000,000 has been spent to the present. The total cost will be in millions.

Illustration of a mother holding a baby, with text boxes providing advice on infant nutrition.

POUND FOR POUND A BABY USES THREE TIMES AS MUCH WATER AS AN ADULT.

LACK OF WATER IN THE BABY'S DIET PREVENTS A NORMAL GAIN IN WEIGHT.

A GENEROUS SUPPLY OF ALL THE VITAMINS IS ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY FOR THE BABY'S PROPER HEALTH AND DEVELOPMENT.

Dr. LOGAN CLENDENING

In order to present succinctly to mothers a few important facts on the feeding of babies, R. J. Scott, artist, has illustrated one of the most comprehensive of the daily diet and health articles of Dr. Logan Clendening, Central Press' famous medical writer. Dr. Clendening considers the proper diet for babies as one of the chief factors in building up the health of the nation and cutting infant mortality, and has devoted a brilliant and fascinating series of his daily articles to the subject.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—According to the experience of a middle west lumber dealer, a frame house can now be built for about 13 per cent less than in the spring of 1929, in some localities the difference is probably as much as 20 per cent.

Manager Adolph Pfund of the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association, reports that a lumberman in a mid-west city recently called for an itemized bid on the construction of a frame dwelling reproducing exactly one that was erected in March and April 1929, on which all cost data were available. The contractor not only undertook to make a replica of the house for $4,349.46, instead of $5,013.33 (exclusive of his own compensation) but also undertook to guarantee his bid.

It was found that every item of

Within the last ten months literally millions of thrifty Americans have taken advantage of the low prices of stocks and bonds to make long-term investments. For the family man a house is both an investment and a home. It is just as wise for such a man to put his funds into a house at these low prices of a decade as it is for him to buy sound stocks and bonds.

What is true of the erection of a new house also applies to repairs, alterations and modernization. It is learned that in some cities, Washington, D. C., for example, there is such a realization on the part of householders that the present is a most opportune time for rebuilding and improving; that contractors find that people whose capacity to foot the bills is doubtful are still very eager to undergo great hardships in order to take advantage of current conditions and average up present costs and valuations of their houses when improved, as against excessive original construction costs.

House No. 642

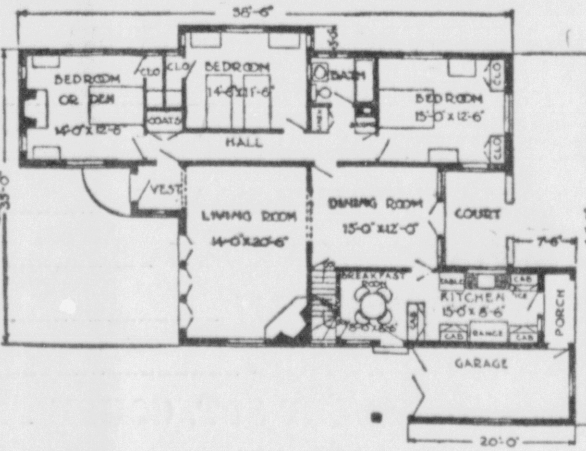

THE old thatched cottages of England seem to be recalled by the design and treatment of this bungalow. The fitting eyebrow dormer in front and a larger one in the back give light and ventilation to the attic where an additional room can be provided if needed.

Face brick has been chosen as the material best adapted to carry out the beauty in the design. The wide range of colors available give to the builder his selection of colors that harmonize with the landscaping and at the same time the brick lend their permanence and strength to the home. Given a Flemish bond—which means that every other brick is headed out—with mortar colored to contrast with the color of the brick, this home takes on an individuality of appearance that is charming.

Through a vestibule one enters either a hall on the left which leads to the bedrooms or the living room on the right. The bedrooms all are of good size and conveniently located near the bath. Each room has windows on three sides, insuring good ventilation and an abundance of light. A fireplace is provided in the front bedroom, which can be used as a library, or den in the event it is not needed for sleeping purposes. The living room has three casement windows across the front and a single, good-sized window on the side wall, next to the fireplace which has been placed in the corner.

A large arched opening between the living and dining rooms gives the effect of one long room when viewed from either end. In the dining room, the window is of ample size to permit good daylight and opens onto a court which has been designed for the rear of the house. The breakfast room and kitchen adjoin and both are equipped with cabinets. The rear porch is as wide as the kitchen and opens directly into the attached garage. The garage can also be entered from the front through a door leading from the breakfast room. The ceiling height of this home is 8 feet 6 inches and the content is 33,000 cubic feet. A 55-foot lot is ample to accommodate it, and if the garage is placed in the rear, a lot of 45 feet in width will suffice.

County authorities are endeavoring to trace ownership of a Ford roadster bearing license plates issued at Middletown, O., which was hastily abandoned by thieves who fled in a hail of buckshot when their plans to rob an apple orchard north of Mt. Zion Church at the junction of the Zimmerman-Bellbrook and Indian Rifle Road were frustrated late Monday night.

Charles Greer, who had rented the large orchard from Harry Darst, had taken precautionary measures to prevent a recurrence of a theft last Saturday night when the orchard was invaded and two trees were stripped of the fruit.

To guard against a repetition of the incident, Greer and a companion armed themselves with shotguns, put up a tent in the orchard to sleep in, and installed a bell in one of the trees. Attached to the bell were lines of twine or wire intended for unsuspecting intruders to trip over, thereby sounding an alarm.

Two attempts to rob the orchard were made Monday night. The first occurred at 10 o'clock. Aroused by the ringing of the alarm, Greer and his companion sighted several shadowy figures in the semi-darkness and five shots were sent in their direction as they ran toward the road. The marauders made their getaway in an auto parked along the road.

An hour later, a second attempt was made to loot the orchard but the bell again sounded the alarm. Once more several shots were fired at indistinct figures but this time the guardians of the orchard were the first to reach an auto parked along the road and the would-be thieves, discovering their escape by this method cut off, fled on foot in another direction.

Deputy George Sheriff George Sudgen was summoned from his home at Alpha and when he arrived at the orchard he found a large number of farmers milling around and armed with shotguns. A search of the confiscated roadster revealed an empty basket and a few stray apples as well as other paraphernalia commonly used by apple thieves in their activities, the deputy sheriff said.

America is a happy nation and electric refrigeration is playing an important part in maintaining this happiness. What would we do if our ice cream were taken away from us or if our theaters were not air cooled, to say nothing of the more essential uses of electric refrigeration.

It would be a problem if we did not have means of refrigerating our food, or if our hospitals could not properly preserve their vaccines and antitoxins. Many hospitals and sanitariums find electric refrigeration a necessity, not only in their laboratories, but in their kitchens.

Consider milk alone. No other food is as vital to the human race. And milk depends entirely on perfect refrigeration for its purity.

Considering the part that electric

refrigeration is playing in saving the food supply of the nation, one can realize the vital relationship electric refrigeration has to civilization.

There are a million pounds of meat, fruit, etc., in cold storage every day in the year. Without electric refrigeration, it is safe to say that neither the huge meat packing or fruit growing industries would be possible. Our diets would be changed. Each family would preserve in the old fashioned well or spring house, only those foods produced in its particular locality. Because of the waste due to spoilage, it would be impractical to ship produce great distances or to store it in large quantities.

Storing and preserving foods by old fashioned methods is possible. It is also possible to supply illumination by oil lamps, or heat by burning chopped logs from nearby forests. The inconvenience and inefficiency resulting from antiquated lighting and heating methods cannot be compared with the dangers of improper preservation of food. We can thank the research and engineering minds of the country for their great contribution to health and happiness—the electric

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Golfers say it's not golf. It's nothing like croquet. In fact none of the various sports has claimed it as an offspring.

With this helpful information the three commissioners of the District of Columbia solemnly assembled to do something no other living person has done. The matter before this august body was to define a miniature golf course.

"What is it?" the presiding commissioner asked commissioner number two. He, in turn, passed the query along to commissioner number three. The latter, not wanting to speak out of order, waited for his colleague, number two, to answer. No answer came and the definition of what constitutes miniature golf was left to that part of the record labeled "unfinished business."

The commissioners could only decide that the game with the clubs and balls is not like stage plays, moving pictures and other "commercial amusements," any one of which any person can define.

Their decision was not reached until after rather lengthy and serious consideration. With Joseph Fitzgerald, Jr., representing the association of miniature golf courses, doing most of the talking, he dodged the question asked earlier at the hearing: "What is it?" He said most everything else however, in declaring the game is different from other commercial amusements and should not have to close at 11:30 p. m. as such.

One owner stepped up during one of Fitzgerald's rest pauses to state his receipts have dwindled almost to half of those he took in when the courses were permitted to remain open until the wee hours of the morning.

Fitzgerald said the public was entitled to play the little game of whatever-it-is.

"Most of our patronage comes after the theaters close down," he said. "Patrons like to play a round or so before going home—and to bed."

And before the commissioners quit for the day they lifted miniature golf from the "commercial amusement" class and ruled the courses in the District can remain open until 1 a. m. on week days, midnight on Saturdays.

FRESHEST GROCERIES

Not to be found in old packages

FOOD and other groceries in A&P stores are always fresh because they are sold quickly. New supplies, therefore, are constantly coming into these stores. Nothing stays on A&P shelves long enough to become stale.

For this reason you find in A&P stores only the latest packages put out by the manufacturers. Sometimes these packages are smaller than the old ones. Sometimes they are larger. But the manufacturers often leave the prices of their packages unchanged on account of varying costs.

This is why sometimes you get a smaller or a larger package in A&P stores than you get in other stores which sell the same goods. Old packages are never to be found where sales are rapid.

The Theater

The deaths of such prominent movie stars as Lon Chaney and Milton Sills within the last few weeks, serves to emphasize the passing of stars whose suns were once expected never to set.

Chaney, Sills, Ralph Ince, Barbara La Marr, Olive Thomas, Harold Lockwood, Rudolph Valentino, Theodore Roberts, John Bunny, Wally Reid, Mabel Normand and other lesser satellites in the film firmament have passed on, but there are others, still living, who are known to the present generation only in memory.

Marguerite Clark is married to a wealthy merchant and lives in a president of the Children's Home Society there.

Even this does not answer all the questions that spring to mind? What has become of Clara Kimball Young, June Caprice, Agnes Ayres, Eugene O'Brien, Theodore Kosloff, Mary Miles Minter, Johnnie Walker? Their names recall familiar faces. T. Roy Barnes and others of his ilk who were eclipsed momentarily, are coming back with the talkies because stage experience serves them in good stead.

It is apparent that more women retire than men, because the men drift into character acting and heavy parts and the women get married. Thus the cinema differs from the stage, where the women may marry but retain their stage identities. And, by the way, Where is Roy Stewart?

co-operation, Lonsdale suggested a careful revision of the system to suit changing times.

"The way to progressive success in all commercial and industrial effort," Lonsdale said, "is through the constant introduction of new economies. Against the institution of these economies, however, is often the menace of Sherman law interpretation. Such a system certainly was never intended to be as it is today."

Present business conditions, Lonsdale said, are the repercussion of the World War.

"We have lavished brain, effort, and millions of dollars in developing production, but there has been a notable lack of achievement in developing markets for what has been produced," he said.

Banking must go as business goes—with all of our people, with the needs of industry, commerce, agriculture and the average man."

One of the crucial issues of the convention revolved about the future of chain banking. In some quarters it was believed that the convention may reverse its long-maintained stand in opposition to the extension of the branch system. Others felt that a compromise arrangement may be made.

Nearly 6,000 banker-delegates were in the city for today's important session. The convention will be drawn to a climax at its closing session Thursday when President Hoover is scheduled to deliver an address that is expected to be of the utmost significance in view of the recognized economic crisis.

Rome S. Stephenson of South Bend, Ind., first vice president of the association, is slated to be elected to the presidency, succeeding Lonsdale, at tomorrow's general session. Harry J. Haas of Philadelphia, second vice president, will be elevated to first vice president, and F. S. Sisson of New York, will be elected second vice president.

John W. Barton, vice president of the Metropolitan National Bank of Minneapolis, ignited the fireworks at the opening session of the convention yesterday with a strong address before the national bank division, of which he is president.

The bankers sharply criticized the tariff and immigration policies of the United States, which he said are an effort to "maintain our high standard of living against the rest of the world. The nation is producing a large surplus," he declared, and "if we do not buy, we cannot expect to sell."

"The present trend of government in business is socialistic in application," he charged. "We face distress unless this tendency is speedily and successfully checked."

Other highlights of yesterday's session included:

A demand for more liberal benefits for member banks from federal reserve bank earnings was made by O. Howard Wolfe, cashier of the Philadelphia National Bank.

Defense of the unit bank was made by Craig B. Hazelwood of Chicago, a former president of the A. B. A., who insisted upon sound bank management for the future well-being of the banking industry. A resolution favoring continuance of the unit bank as against the chain system was adopted by the state bank division, composed of bankers who head smaller institutions.

Denial that the farmer has lost his buying power was made by Charles P. Colleson, Minneapolis agricultural expert, who declared that products of the right kind of diversified livestock farming are above or in line with the general average of retail prices of the commodities that farmers buy.

Local business men and representatives of The Dayton Power and Light Co. played a question and answer game at the monthly dinner-meeting of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association at the Elks' Club Monday night.

At the invitation of the business men's organization, J. C. Matthieu and Attorney Charles Pfarrer, representing the D. P. and L. Co., attended the meeting and attempted to justify to the satisfaction of Xenia merchants, the company's proposed new rate schedules for commercial, residential and street lighting in Xenia.

Various business men propounded questions to the two Dayton men and the upshot of the meeting was that the association adopted a resolution to be forwarded to City Commission, requesting the city fathers to proceed along the same lines previously suggested by the organization, namely, to condemn and purchase the electric distribution system of the Dayton company in Xenia and open the light contracts to competitive bidding.

LET IT GROW, GIRLS

VIENNA, Sept. 30.—One "boyish bob" was thrown definitely into discard by the international Congress of Hairdressers in session here today.

A resolution was passed decreeing the complete and final death of close-cropped locks and shaven necks. Bobbed hair, the congress voted, was nothing less than "impossible" with the present long evening gowns "which require a stylish head-dress appropriate to the style of the gown."
